GOVERNMENT TO SUE FOR HUGE SUM FROM WAR CANTONMENT BUILDERS

Daugherty Seeks to Recover $78,000,000, Part of Amount Gouged From U. S. by Profiteering Contractors—Is Beginning of Exposure.

(Copyright, 1922, by International News Service.)

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Washington, Nov. 24.—Orders went out from the department of justice today to federal district attorneys for the institution of suits against the contractors who built the cantonment camps, under which Attorney General Daugherty hopes to recover the enormous sum of $78,000,000.

This sum, according to officials, represents "profiteering" as closely as war department experts have been able to calculate, although it is admitted that the government was "gouged" for a great deal more which probably cannot be recovered because of lack of evidence.

The suits will be begun all over the country in the next few days, it was learned today. The first probably will be filed in the cases of Camp Sherman, Ohio, built at a cost of $13,000,000, in which the government hopes to recover $5,000,000; and in the case of Camp Grant, Rock Island, Ill., built at approximately the same cost and in which the government hopes to make an even greater proportionate recovery.

The attorney general in ordering these suits, provides a preliminary to a series of disclosures which he will rely upon to offset accusations that the department of justice has been derelict in prosecuting war profiteers. Alleged cantonment frauds under the scale now revealed, is the first big result of the attorney general's drive against the "war profiteers."

Sensational disclosures are reported due in federal actions to be begun within twenty-four hours against contractors who are alleged to have gouged the government out of money paid out on loosely drawn contracts and just as loosely drawn vouchers—hundreds of them with the connivance of "inside" per-allegees serving as "swivel chair" major domos in government departments, and with power of approval or rejection on bids and final payments.

The attorney general's drive on the cantonment operators was said today to be but the beginning of a complete exposure of "war price gouging" in every field of war endeavor. The attorney general, it is said, is confident it will provide sufficient answer to demands for his impeachment.

The department of justice virtually attacks the validity of all contracts for supplies and equipment entered into by the war department for the building of all of the camps for soldiers constructed at the outbreak of the war.

The criminal phases of the actions contemplated by the government have to do with alleged collusion, or understandings which resulted in the padding of "costs" not only for labor, but for materials and supplies of every kind. These items of cost have been carefully checked and the department has gone into relations of those who participated in the transactions involved. In some instances it is expected the government will show direct business relations between contracting and supply firms.

Suits for recovery will be filed in district courts, and grand jury actions in several instances are likely. Details of the presentments to be made are being kept secret, but it is said they will involve a number of prominent figures and the names of some men who rushed to the aid of the government in the war emergency.

Former comptroller of the treasury Warwick, in a report which was made the basis for investigation by the department of justice, disclosed how it had been possible for the war of war endeavor for government vouchers to be executed without the usual safeguards. Comptroller Warwick's record in the case dealt not merely with war cantonment frauds, but with "profiteering" in shipping board transactions, and those of other bureaus and offices, suspected of having been victims of profiteering on a large scale.

The department of justice will institute eighteen separate federal court actions against those involved, it was learned.

CUNO OUTLINES GERMAN POLICY

$120,000,000 Gold Loan From U. S. If Possible, and Four Years Repayment From Versailles Treaty Terms Are New Government's Chief Aims.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Berlin, Nov. 24.—Germany under the new Cuno cabinet will demand foreign credits of 500,000,000 gold marks (approximately $120,000,000) and four years' "complete freedom" from the obligations of the treaty of Versailles, Chancellor Wilhelm Cuno announced in the Reichstag this afternoon.

The new chancellor said that his government unconditionally endorses the German note of November 13 to the Inter-Allied Reparations Commission, and was determined to carry it out.

(This note set forth financial needs and reforms of Germany and the conditions upon which Germany wanted outside help.)

The hope that the United States "can at last be brought to understand the seriousness of the German economic situation and that American financial interests will assist Germany in meeting her obligations," was voiced by the chancellor.

"We promise immediate action for stabilization of the mark," continued Chancellor Cuno. "Shortly we shall demand 500,000,000 gold marks from the Reichstag for that purpose. We hope to obtain foreign credits for the same amount at the same time."

"It is the government's plan to stop the importation of all luxuries. As to industry, we plan to continue the eight hour day with some limited exceptions."

"Unity and work is to be our motto."

Chancellor Cuno promised the "most drastic economy and stringent law enforcement," adding:

"The prime condition of all our promises and plans is that Germany be freed for three or four years from all cash and goods payments due under the Versailles treaty."

"We see dangers that are connected with the stabilization of the mark but prefer facing them to creeping decay."

The chancellor was frequently interrupted by the Communist members with hoots and jeers and shouts of "Stinnes cabinet!" "Stinnes cabinet!" "Stinnes chancellor!" and "Stinnes republic!"

M'SWINEY SISTERS IN GRAVE STATE

Annie Removed From Jail Doorway To Hospital—Both Scarcely Refuse Food.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Dublin, Nov. 24.—Both Mary and Annie MacSwiney, sisters of the late Lord Mayor Terence MacSwiney, of Cork, who went on hunger strike in protest against the Free State government, were in grave condition today.

Mary, who is a prisoner in Mt. Joy prison, has been a victim of self-imposed starvation for 20 days. Annie, who began her hunger strike at the gates of Mt. Joy prison when the officials refused to permit her to see her sister, is entering the second week of her fast.

Following her physical collapse Annie grew so weak that women friends removed her to a private hospital this morning.

Although so helpless that she could hardly raise a hand, the starvation rebel stubbornly refused to take the warm broth that was prepared for her. When asked if she would not break her fast and eat, Annie shook her head.

It was reported from the hospital ward of Mt. Joy prison that Mary MacSwiney refused the attentions of doctors and nurses. She lies in a semi-coma upon her cot but realizes all that goes on around her.

All officials said her condition was "unchanged."

ERSKINE CHILDERS SHOT AT DAWN

Gamely Faces Free State Firing Squad in Jail Yard On Outskirts of Dublin—Was De Valera's Chief Aide.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Dublin, Nov. 24.—Erskine Childers, chief aide of Eamonn de Valera in the Irish Republican movement, was executed at seven o'clock this morning by a Free State firing squad. Official announcement of the execution was made shortly afterward by the Free State cabinet.

It was a raw, foggy morning with a cold wind blowing when Childers was led from his cell in the Kilmainham jail on the outskirts of the city. Escorted by a little group of Free State soldiers, Childers was quickly taken into the jail yard. A priest was present and administered the last sacrament.

The firing squad was lined up, a handkerchief was tied across the face of the rebel leader and he was placed with his back against the wall. Half a dozen shots rang out. Childers crumpled up.

A doctor examined him and pronounced him dead. Persons who saw the execution, said that Childers died game and that his courage stayed with him to the last. He made no plea for mercy.

Shortly after the execution a brief communique was issued saying: "Erskine Childers was duly convicted by a Free State court martial of possessing arms for purposes of rebellion against the Irish government. He was sentenced to death. This sentence was confirmed. This morning it was carried out."

MISS VAN LOAN OBSERVES HER 101ST BIRTHDAY

Athens Resident Voted a Century After She Was Born.

Miss Alice Van Loan, a lifelong resident of Athens, Greene county, celebrated her 101st birthday Thursday, November 23. She was born at the old homestead in 1821, the daughter of Casper and Mary Van Loan, and a direct descendant of Jan Van Loan, one of the three grantees who received a confirmation grant from the Colonial Government in 1683 of the Loonenburgh Patent, which includes the land where the village of Athens now stands. The first house there was built by him in 1788, and is now occupied and is located next to Lenahan's shipyard on the state road.

Miss Van Loan cast her vote at the general election in 1921, but was not young enough to vote at the primary election. She has always been in sympathy with the Republican party and has been a devoted member of the Episcopal Church. Her brother, Andrew B. Van Loan, is her companion but until quite recently she has managed her own business affairs and has taken keen interest in questions of the day.

Neutral Zone Proposed for Eastern Thrace to Keep Greeks and Turks Apart—Turks and Russia Drawing Together.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Lausanne, Nov. 24.—Eastern Thrace—the slice of European territory that the Turks obtain as a result of their military victory over the Greeks—will be bounded by a demilitarized zone in which the Turks may not maintain troops nor establish forts, it was decided today by the Near East peace conference sub-committee handling military and political affairs.

This sub-committee which is headed by General Weygand, chief of staff to Marshal Foch, was appointed by the general committee on military, political and territorial matters. It took up the question of demilitarization during the morning, leaving Bulgaria's request for a "wind-down" on the Aegean Sea until this afternoon. The sub-committee was expected to make a formal report later.

The friendship shown to Bulgaria by her former enemies in the war, was one of the surprising results of the conference so far. Premier Stambouloff of Bulgaria, made formal request that the port of Dedegatchi be restored to Bulgaria along with a territorial "corridor" connecting the port up with the southern Bulgarian frontier. This petition received support from the Allies, chiefly Italy and the participating Balkan states as well.

The arrival of M. Vorovsky, Soviet Russian envoy to Turkey, has been followed by a series of developments which indicate that the Turks and Russians are going to work hand in glove. There is belief in some circles that, if present plans are carried to their conclusion, the peace conference may be followed by an alliance between the Turks and Russians.

NEW POST-OFFICE SITE NOT YET DECIDED UPON.

Although there were rumors current today that the downtown station of the post office would be located in the Mansion House building, the government has not as yet announced where the office would be moved to. When it became known that the office would be removed from its present location on lower Broadway when the lease expired next April, there were several applications made which were forwarded to the federal office in Washington. There appears to be a strong probability, however, that the site when announced will be the Mansion House.

FROM THE ORIENT

Dresses and Wraps Embroidered in Winsome Designs.

Arab's Costume Affords Color Inspiration; Originality and Charm Appeal to Fashion Devotees.

Fashions are steadily becoming more artistic than they have been for many long years. Color, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune, is at last beginning to receive the attention which it deserves. Designers in their enthusiasm are searching in unusual and hitherto unthought-of places for inspiration.

A wave of Russian peasant art has just swept the country. Before that there was the Egyptian invasion, as well as the Chinese, the Japanese and the Spanish influence.

Now something new has appeared in Paris in the form of dresses and wraps embroidered by Algerian native workers in designs taken from the Orient. These dresses have been put on the market by several designers.

Each dress is seemingly an extraordinary as its inspiration, but it is just its originality and Oriental charm that will appeal to the fashion devotee always in search of something different.

If one is seeking color inspiration a wonderful place to find it is in the Arab's costume. The brilliant colors that these dark-skinned people love and wear so well are mellowed by the scorching African sun until they have become fabrics of rare beauty. Even the tents of these desert people are striped in bold colors which have been mellowed by time and the elements to unusual and beautiful tones.

There are few women, no matter how great their love of color, who would care to depart so far from conventional dress as to adopt in their entirety all the colors portrayed in the Arab's garb, but, used with discretion, charming effects may be achieved.

For instance, an old ivory tint that combines beautifully with blue—a shade of blue frequently seen in a faded cotton fabric that, in its original color, was a strong French blue. Then there are the beautiful twiny gold shades which so often appear in the Arab's turban. These are most attractive used in combination with red and purple.

BERTHA HAS SQUARE CORNERS

Decorative Hangs in Ripples Over the Shoulders; Round Collar is Popular Article

A bertha which is being featured has square corners which hang in ripples over the shoulders. This is a pleasant change from the round variety so prevalent recently. An attractive model combines both types. It is round across the back and to the shoulder line where it runs into a square high effect and hangs down over the front of the frock.

The round collar attached to a straight front vest is the most popular article. Another good number is the round collar and cuff set in eyelet work. It is said that the long square collar is vying in popularity with the rounded type.

Trimming on Hats. Stuffed balls in all colors of velvet are seen on hats. Fuschia color is the newest, but many soft felt outing hats are trimmed with a ups of all colored balls.

Autumn Sports Skirts. Autumn fabrics for sports skirts include attractive tweed and homespun in smart striped and cross-barred designs in contrasting colors.

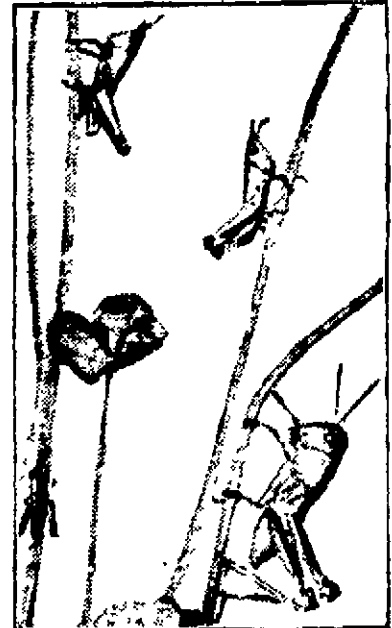

Glow of Leather and Cloth Bindings. The decorative value of books is too little appreciated. Of course no one would recommend the purchase of books for this purpose. But the book one has should be given a chance to brighten and enrich the room with the subdued glow that comes from various colors blended in their bindings.

Orchard Information

GRASSHOPPERS INJURE TREES

Foliage is Often Completely Devoured and Serious Harm Results—Use Poison Bait.

During seasons of heavy grasshopper infestation, orchard and nursery trees are sure to suffer where the grasshoppers are permitted to migrate from adjoining pastures, meadows or other crops. There are three common species of grasshoppers which do this damage, the red-legged, differential and two-lined. Where injury occurs

Young Hoppers Feeding.

It is usually soon after hay harvest the foliage is often completely devoured and serious injury may result where the hungry grasshoppers attempt to appease their appetites further by gnawing the bark from the twigs and even the trunks of small trees.

Where grasshoppers are abundant on crops near the orchard or nursery one should take precautions to prevent trouble. Poison bran bait sown broadcast in infested meadows and other crops when the hoppers are yet small will rid the community of the pest. Poison bran bait is prepared by mixing dry 50 pounds of bran and two pounds of white arsenic or paris green and moistening this with about eight gallons of water with which are mixed four quarts of cheap sorghum and the juice and chopped-up rinds of six lemons.

It is usually soon after hay harvest the foliage is often completely devoured and serious injury may result where the hungry grasshoppers attempt to appease their appetites further by gnawing the bark from the twigs and even the trunks of small trees.

SHOE ON OTHER FOOT.

A Mexican was taken from a Texas jail and lynched, whereupon the Mexican government made representations to the State Department at Washington. In this case the shoe is on the other foot. In the recent past Americans have got highly excited when their countrymen have been deprived of their lives in Mexico without process of law, and have demanded that the Mexican government make instant reparation and visit prompt punishment on the murderers. What is Texas or the United States going to do in the present instance?

There is a bill pending in Congress that, if it were enacted into law, would effectually meet the situation. It is known as the Dyer anti-lynching bill, and undertakes to hold the county in which a lynching occurs responsible for damages to the estate of the deceased. The measure has met with determined opposition from the representatives of states where lynchings are of more or less frequent occurrence, but it apparently offers the only practicable remedy for the prevalence of the crime. The self-respect of the nation and of the states ought to demand the enactment of the bill.

ANOTHER HAND-OUT.

Germany must import 2,000,000 tons of grain in the next year if famine is to be avoided. But the cost of the grain would be $800,000,000,000 marks at the present rate of exchange, which is twice as much as all the paper money in circulation in Germany. Query: Who will furnish the grain? Why, the United States, of course, just as she will assume the support of the victimized Greeks who have dissipated their substance while playing cat-paw for the rest of Europe in fighting the Turks; and just as she will take over again the feeding of many million Russians as the soviet government can continue without hindrance its policy of confiscating about everything the peasantry produce—that is unless the American people decide they have seen enough of disolute Europe's improvidence, and call a halt on their contributions.

JAUNDICED HISTORY.

John William Fortescue, English "historian" and librarian of Windsor Castle, was recently invited to address the West Point cadets, but the invitation was later withdrawn by direction of Secretary of War Weeks when it was brought to light that in his "British Statesmen of the Great War" Mr. Fortescue had expressed himself as follows: "Americans esteem a good bargain, even if gained by dishonorable means, to mark the highest form of ability. The United States can not engage in any form of competition with us, from athletics to diplomacy, without using foul play. They must win, if not by fair skill, then by prearranged trickery or violence; if not by open negotiation, then by garbled maps and forged documents. There is the fact. It may be unpleasant, but it can not be denied." Mr. Fortescue has since explained that the book in which this passage occurs, was written in 1911, and that the "great war" referred to was that of 1793-1815 dating from the French Revolution, and further: "When I wrote there was fresh in my mind an incident in the Bering sea negotiations and an unfortunate lapse in good sportsmanship on the part of an American competitor in international sports which had recently been held in England. All this is now ancient history."

So very "ancient," it appears, that Mr. Fortescue can not now remember any of the details or the alleged facts on which he based his "history" smelling of mere malicious floating gossip. No real historian would even mention such stories unless through exhaustive investigation he had found them to be well based on existing record or large grains of truth. The withdrawal of the West Point invitation can hardly be the only embarrassment faced by Librarian Fortescue. One would think that the foundations of his official job are pretty rudely shaken.

House and big Republican majorities in the Senate and House. Let the voters realize that fact, and be ready in 1924 to give the Republican party the credit that is its due.

What do you want to know about Nature Subjects? Send any questions of general interest to the Nature Notes Department of this paper, enclosing self-addressed and stamped envelope for reply.

Can You Answer These Questions?

1. How many kinds of birds are known to use artificial nesting boxes?
2. Is there such a thing as a stinging snake in the south, is it poisonous, and has a reward ever been offered for one?
3. How do frogs make their croaking sound?

Answers in Tomorrow's Nature Notes.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Are kangaroos flesh eaters or vegetable eaters? Wholly vegetarian. They are native of Australia where carnivorous land animals are lacking, except for the wild dog, or dingy. Kangaroos have sharp cutting teeth and are browsers, but they do not ruminate like cud-chewers.

2. What color are oriole's eggs, and how long does it take to hatch them? Whitish, but tinted either blue or gray; and scrawled or blotched with dark color, varying from dark brown to purple or gray. The broad end of the egg usually has most marking. Twelve days is the common incubation period, and five is the ordinary number per nest.

3. What can I do to prevent a next year attack on my Hubbard squash vines, by a white grub that eats near the root? This grub destroyed vines this summer where squashes as big as tea cups had already formed.

Probably attacked by the squash borer, Melitta satyriiformis. Its yellowish excrement betrays its presence. The grub or larva goes into the ground to winter and comes out a moth the following spring, laying eggs early. Cultivate the ground in fall and plow deeply in spring to destroy these larvae and moths. Burn all squash vines as soon as fruit matures, to keep the larvae from feeding. Growing vines may have moist dirt drawn over at the joints, to cause new roots to form, thus giving the plant more chances to survive. If any one root is infested by the borer.

WHY McDONALD LEFT WATER SUPPLY POLICE

To The Kingston Freeman,
Kingston, New York.

Gentlemen:
I have been employed as a member of the Board of Water Supply Police for the past six months and have been stationed at the Allaben precinct in the town of Shandaken. Recently I resigned my position and rumors have been circulated as to my reason therefor, which are unfounded, and the only means of my resignation is through the public press. I therefore ask you if you will publish this letter explaining my resignation.

Recently I was transferred by Sergeant Steinmetz, who is in charge of the Allaben precinct, from the Allaben precinct to the Westkill precinct. Upon being so transferred I requested of Sergeant Steinmetz the reason for the transfer and was informed that the sole and only reason therefor was because previously to my last leave period I had been seen talking to Sergeant Ocker of the Board of Water Supply Police and with Joseph Merante, and because I had been seen going to Merante's store at Allaben. At that time I was not on duty and as an American citizen consider it my right to talk to whom I please, and to go to such places as I may choose so long as the same are public and decent, and when an official undertakes to so dictate my conduct when not under his jurisdiction, I consider it an infringement of personal liberty which no self respecting man could countenance, and therefore I resigned.

Will you be good enough to publish this explanation for me.

Respectfully,
G. F. McDONALD.

WHY

Engagement Ring Has Become Recognized Institution

There wasn't much romance connected with the ring back in the Second century, B. C., when women first began to flash it on the fourth finger of her left hand as a symbol of betrothal. The engagement ring originated as a "safety first" institution to hold sickle and forgetful men to his bargain from the time he made his first avowal of love until the wedding ceremony took place. As an ancient document reveals:

"There are many men who, forgetful of their pledged faith, defer the fulfillment of their nuptial contracts. Therefore there shall be a solemn declaration before witnesses and a betrothal ring given and accepted."

An old German formula reads: "I give you this ring as a sign of the marriage which has been promised between us, provided your father gives with you a marriage portion of a thousand reichstalers."

During the Seventeenth century England chose to have the engagement ring adorn the thumb. The reason why English women wore them on their thumbs during the reign of George I. was because they were too large to wear on any other finger. The old Hebrew betrothal rings were almost as large as turnips, including in their superstructure reproductions of Solomon's temple or some other sacred building.

At one time the engagement ring consisted of three hoops looped together into what was known as a gimmel or puzzle ring. When the wedding took place one of these hoops was kept by the bride, one given to the groom and the third bestowed on an intimate friend who acted as witness to the ceremony.

ALL SEEK ROYAL WARRANTS

How Restrictions Have Been Placed on Privilege That Is Much Coveted in England.

The most important of all commercial honors is the royal warrant, and naturally it is much coveted, says London Tit-Bits.

The first thing a warrant holder has to learn is that his privileges are limited and what these limits are. A royal warrant of appointment to the king means that a holder of this document is entitled to use the royal arms over his shop and on his note paper.

He may not display the royal arms on a flag or use them as a trademark. If he uses them in his trade announcements he must be very careful to use the words "by appointment" beneath them. The arms should never be used without this wording.

The royal privileges are extremely carefully guarded, and if wrongfully used by the holder of a royal warrant, this would probably mean that the warrant would be taken away from the owner.

Very often, though, one sees the royal arms illegally used; for instance, it is no uncommon thing to see them printed on a poster at election time, or used as an inn sign. Even the use of the word "royal" is not allowed without special permission.

How Gold Prospectors Work.

Whether gold occurs as an alluvial deposit or in a "reef," it is traced by the prospector with the help of a gold pan. This is a shallow pan of light sheet iron with dish sides.

When "panning" for gold, the prospector places the sand, soil, or crushed rock into the pan, and adds water to wet the substance to be panned. Then, holding the pan in a tub or stream of water, he adds more water, and by a shaking motion works the heavy minerals to the bottom of the pan. By a japping process he ejects the sand until there remains only concentrates, among which the gold may be distinguished by its color and relative heaviness.

There are rich gold reefs which shed gold very sparingly, and sometimes the gold is locked up in pyrite or other minerals, from which it is liberated by roasting or chemical treatment.

How to See the Wind.

Choose for the trial a windy day, when the air is free from rain or snow. Take a bright, clean hand saw or other polished metal object about two feet in length and having a straight edge. Hold the saw or metallic surface at right angles to the direction of the wind. Incline it at about 35 or 40 degrees to the horizon and with the back up, so that the moving air, in striking the surface will glance upward and flow over the edge of the metal, as water flows over a dam. Sight carefully along the edge of the metal, at a sharply defined object, and you will see the wind or air waves pouring over the edge in graceful curves.

Unusually Endowed With Legs.

Following on the reports from Ontario of quadruped birds comes a story from Tawatawa, Alberta, where a farmer has a four-legged chicken. The two extra legs in this case seem to have grown just at the end of the backbone and across each other just under the tail. It is a healthy bird and will eat and fight with the rest of the brood.

Pig Retrieved Ring.

While digging potatoes a Prince Edward Island woman lost her wedding ring, which was too big. The pig was then turned into the garden to root for the potatoes that were missed. When the hog fattened and was butchered the woman's ring was found on one of the pig's teeth.

Makes for Longevity.

Cheerfulness is the best promoter of health, and is as friendly to the mind as to the body.—Addison.

Last Survivor of the 1812 Conflict.

The last surviving pensioned soldier of the War of 1812 died in 1922 at the age of one hundred and five.

Women as Strikers.

The king of Spain is believed to have displayed a stroke of genius by calling on the women of Spain to take the place of the striking postmen. The women's weekly remarks. The post-office strike has caused great confusion in transportation and delivery of the mails and much sabotage was indulged in. The women of Spain, who have received probably fewer privileges than in any other European country, responded with enthusiasm, thousands entering the service, and they soon showed efficiency and gave satisfaction. The move proved popular with the people of every class, since it added to the number of breadwinners of the country. So successful has the experiment proved and so willing have the men been to stop work and go on strike, that there is talk of applying the plan to other departments of the government.

Saved California Raisins.

In the great raisin-grape growing district of central California the drying is done in trays in the open air. Great loss would result if rain should fall on the partially dried fruit; hence when rain is expected the information is immediately spread throughout the valley by telephone and telegraph, and every available person is set to covering the trays. Even the schools may be closed and the children pressed into service, and was beside the undermanned tramp caught in the district who has a disinclination to become acquainted with work. This is another instance indicative of the valuable service rendered by the women of California in saving the raisin crop from possible losses.

No Altitude for Him.

A friend just returned from teaching in Kentucky told this story of a backwoodsman who had been elected to serve in the state legislature. Arrived at the capital, he handed his card to the doorman. That individual glanced at the name and said: "You go upstairs."

"Like hell I go upstairs!" quoth the embryo maker of laws. "I was elected to the lower house, and that's where I stay!"—Judge.

Routes in Berlin were until recently limited to 125 per cent more than the pre-war figure; they have now gone up to 500 per cent of that amount.

Discreet Preference.

"Would you rather be photographed than interviewed?" "Yes," replied Senator Borah. "What you look like may not help you much, but there's no chance of its being as embarrassing as what you happen to say."

Had "The Goods" on Minister.

An old Scotswoman was told that her minister used notes, but would not believe it. Said one: "Gang into the gallery an' see." She did so and saw the written sermon. After the luckless preacher had concluded his reading on the last page he said: "But I will not enlarge." The old woman called out from her lofty position: "Ye canna, ye canna, for your paper's giv' out!"

A SHOPPING PLACE FOR THRIFTY PEOPLE

Chanak, Mudania and Ismid

Chanak, on the Dardanelles.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

Three towns of Asia Minor, seldom heard of in ordinary times, have stood out in the world news of recent weeks—Chanak, Mudania and Ismid. Mere villages normally, each has had suddenly poured into it soldiers or celebrities, and has taken on, briefly at least, importance greater than that of many a metropolis.

Chanak, the strategic point on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, which figured for weeks as a sort of threatened British Thermopylae, illustrates how translation may spoil romance. The name means "pots"—scullery ware. But though it has a hum-drum name, Chanak—or Tehanek-Kalesi—and its neighborhood have more than once been the stage for acts which have radically modeled the world's history and even the world's literature. Barely twenty miles to the south rose Troy, to furnish inspiration alike to Homer and his myriad of readers. Within a stone's throw of Chanak, Xerxes in 480 B. C. led his thousands of Persians across the Dardanelles on a bridge of boats in the first formidable expedition of Asiatics into Europe which history records. At the same spot a century and a half later Alexander led his smaller but more highly trained army into Asia on his triumphal conquest of the world.

It was from Chanak in 1453 that the Turks crossed to their first foothold in Europe—a crossing that gave Europe a problem that has bred wars and massacres and broken treaties for more than five hundred years.

The Sea of Marmora into which the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus widen forms a barrier between Asia and Europe. The roads between the two continents lie across the two straits at its ends. Constantinople at the narrowest point of the Bosphorus, is the front door; Chanak, where the Dardanelles is most constricted, is the back door. It is natural enough, perhaps, that almost all of the historic invasions of Europe from the East should have been by the back way, and that there again today Great Britain should have made an important stand.

Castle after castle, each fortified, comes into view on both the Asiatic and the European sides of the Dardanelles as one steams from the Aegean toward Constantinople. But the narrow opposite Chanak are reserved for the castles of castles; the castle of Asia on the right, the castle of Europe on the left. The Chanak fortifications were first constructed in 1470, not long after Constantinople fell to the Turks. Ever since Chanak has been a place of importance. In recent decades it has been the point of administration for all the Dardanelles defenses—the solar plexus of the outer straits. German artillery experts resided there during the World war and modernized the fortifications.

Mudania Something of a Seaport.

While Chanak is a channel port, Mudania, scene of the Near East military parley, is a full-fledged seaport—on paper at least. It is, however, on what is now the quiet little Sea of Marmora, though it was once the central body of water of the civilized world. Inconspicuous as it is, Mudania, scene of the Near East peace parley, was far from being unimportant before the World war began. In those days its visitors went through Mudania on the boat-and-rail trip from Constantinople to Bursa. The Turks probably chose Bursa's port for their conference with allied representatives because Mudania is the nearest town, in the neutral zone of the Straits territory, to this their chief Asia Minor city, which lies just across the line where the Turk rule is absolute.

When the Marmora was yet an inland Turkish sea the boat from Constantinople to Mudania was apt to be late and crowded, and many travelers complained of petty exactions from porters and customs officials. Petty annoyances, though, cannot wholly mar a trip across the Marmora, and the western traveler who views the Asiatic coast line of this placid lake for the first time has a sight of rare beauty and probably a surprise. Capes and islands, bays and forested shores, make the approach to almost any point between Chanak and Ismid a scene of beauty. And the mid-city of the South Marmora shore, Mudania, is no exception.

BOY SCOUTS

(Conducted by National Council of the Boy Scouts of America)

THE SCOUT HANDBOOK

Since the foundation of the scout movement the Handbook of the Boy Scouts of America has been the companion and guide of perhaps more boys than any other book in the English language. The book has proved so attractive to boys that schools have adopted it as a textbook because of its appeal, as well as its literary merit and fund of information.

A nine-year-old boy, so the story goes, once started out to memorize its 500 pages. It can be said it is found in the pocket of the scout, on the bookshelf of the naturalist, with the greenhorn in camp, with the explorer in the outland, sometimes in the housewife's kitchen table drawer, and once it was placed with a dead hero in his grave, left lying in his coat just as it was when he was lifted from the trenches.

The chapters on Woodlore, Fire Prevention, Health, Signaling, Radio, Patriotism, Tracking and other subjects were written by experts who not only know their subject profoundly, but can present the information in a fascinating way to boys.

Perhaps no other book has ever been published with so large a number of editors as the Handbook of the Boy Scouts. When the movement was started in this country, the national council sent a proof of the work to 500 college presidents, and 4,500 men engaged in active boys' work, with the request that they share in the responsibility of planning this great movement. Many valuable suggestions were received and acted on.

James E. West, chief scout executive, says: "We had in mind that we must build our foundations with great care, so that they would stand the strain of the coming years, and those who have been in touch with the work of the movement know how well they have stood that strain. We hoped then, 11 years ago, as we built, to reach the goal that we have now attained: the largest organized activity for character building and citizenship training."

TO TEACH SCOUTMASTERS

Columbia university, which for several years past has conducted training courses for the scout leaders of the metropolitan district, has further recognized the importance of the boy scout movement by announcing a home study course in scoutmastership. Scouting is thereby added to the list of subjects taught by the extension division of the university through its home study department.

This course will make it possible for scoutmasters in any part of the United States to secure individual help and instruction in the conduct of their troops from experts in recreational leadership of the staff of the university. The course is founded on the official handbooks for boys and for scoutmasters and includes 12 new booklets, covering the following subjects: "Essential Factors," "How Scouting Works," "Boys and Boy Leaders," "Troop and Patrol Organization," "Scoutcraft," "Programs and Activities," "Troop Meetings," "Hikes and Camps," "Physical Welfare and Special Events," "Progress in Citizenship," "Relationships and Policies," "Scouting and the Community."

STICKS TO HIS JOB

A scout of Tacoma, Wash., Troop 30, declined an offer to go to camp for the reasons stated in the following letter: "Dear Scout Executive: I regret to say that I cannot accept your offer, although I would like to do so under ordinary circumstances. I have made a faithful promise on my honor to help an old widow woman. I told her I'd stick to my job and pick all the berries I could for her because it's her living for this winter. I doubt if she will make enough to tide her over. If not, our troop will tide her over. Remember, 'a scout is loyal,' so I must stick with her."

SILVER MEDAL FOR SCOUT

Scout Norman Gratton of Troop No. 1 North Reading, Mass., has been awarded a silver medal for life-saving by the national court of honor. Scout Gratton, who is bugler and patrol leader of his troop, was swimming in a river near his home one day last August, when he heard cries from a group of children and noticed a boy and a girl caught in the deeper water. Gratton swam to the spot and after considerable effort pulled both ashore. Scoutmaster Orris H. Saxby recommended him to the national court of honor.

LORD ROSEBERY ON SCOUTING

Lord Rosebery, prominent British statesman and warm supporter of scouting, in speaking on scout training said: "If I were to form the highest ideal for my country, it would be this: that it should be a nation of which the manhood was exclusively composed of men who had been or who were boy scouts and who were trained in the boy scout theory. Such a nation would be the honor of mankind. It would be the greatest moral force the world has ever known."

Sea Varies in Salinity.

Different parts of the surface of the sea vary markedly in salinity, for it will increase where evaporation is great, as in the Red Sea, and decrease where the rainfall is heavy, or where there is very little wind and much depression.

MUST REST IN CHINESE SOIL

No Son of the Flowery Empire Allowed to Remain Perpetually in a Foreign Grave.

It is not perhaps generally known, but no Chinaman's remains remain indefinitely on foreign soil. At the west coast where Chinese are much more numerous than in the East, Chinese cemeteries are large and there are lots of them. In the graveyard is a large, hollow cement dome with a small hole just above a small altar table. Plunks, or small tapers, are burned continually on this altar during a burial ceremony and the object is to drive the evil spirits into the dome and hold them there until the remains are interred. From the time the body leaves the house until it is covered, prayer papers are continually in the air. These papers are punched with numerous small holes, and the belief is that the bad spirits must creep through each of these holes before they can enter the body.

Periodically the bones of the departed are disinterred and packed in small caskets. On all the P. and O. liners are sections devoted entirely to the carrying of these small, bone-filled caskets, back to China for final reinterment. No Chinese bones are knowingly allowed to remain on foreign soil. Thus China is a land of graveyards and the greatest difficulties found by railway companies building in China is to avoid disturbing the remains of China's honored dead.

TOOTH DECAY DUE TO BREAD

Exhaustive Experiments Have Absolved Sweets From Blame Which Has Been Attached to Them.

The general belief that the consumption of jams, jellies and such sweets are responsible for the progress of decay in our teeth, has not been borne out by experiments which were made at the hygienic institute of the Leipzig university. On the other hand it was indicated that bread was responsible for such troubles. This was shown by taking perfectly sound teeth and coating them with wax, into which an aperture was made at one point or another, and these were then subjected to an immersion in a mixture of bread and saliva at a temperature of 87 degrees Centigrade. At the end of 33 days many of the teeth showed signs of softening at the exposed point; while 28 days later all showed the softening signs. At the end of 124 days completely developed caries was developed in all the teeth under experiment. A similar test with jams and jellies resulted in a complete vindication of the sweets, for the same length of time showed that the fruit acids and the perfumed acids of the preserves had no effect upon the teeth whatever.

Right Way to Breathe.

The fundamental of health—also of beauty—is proper breathing. Most people don't bring the remote cells of the lungs into use. Reducing the respirations to ten per minute for five consecutive minutes three times a day will insure full breathing. For instance, as you are walking, instead of breathing as you ordinarily do, make ten complete respirations per minute (ten inhalations and ten exhalations). In other words, you breathe in for three seconds and out for three seconds, making a complete respiration every six seconds, at which rate your respiration will be at the rate of ten per minute. To simplify, make 60 complete respirations last you for five minutes. At the end of five minutes you will find that you will be breathing deeply and filling your lungs to capacity. This is simply an exercise, and three or four times a day will be found sufficient, according to a Delinco writer.

Woman Turns Blue From Poison Effect

New York.—Poisoned by oil of mirbane, a supposedly harmless disinfectant, Mrs. Blanche Shipley and her two infant sons were turning blue by the time they succumbed in summoning neighbors to their home in Newark. Mrs. Shipley and her elder son, Frank, eleven months old, were blue about the lips and the finger tips. Robert, the eleven-day old infant, was blue from head to foot and apparently in pain. The victims were able to walk to the City hospital. The case is puzzling physicians there. The disinfectant was simply sprinkled about the house and its principal constituent is bitter almond juice.

REPORT SMALL GRAIN CROPS

Neither France Nor Germany Will Reap the Quantity Which Was the Result of the Last Harvest.

The wheat crop of France for 1922 is estimated at 255,380,000 bushels, according to a cablegram received by the United States Department of Agriculture from the international institute of agriculture at Rome. This is a decrease of 88,000,000 bushels from the yield in 1921. The wheat yield of Germany is estimated at 99,070,000 bushels, a reduction of 38,130,000 bushels from last year's crop.

The rye crop of France is estimated at 37,900,000 bushels, compared with 44,302,000 bushels last year; barley, 39,540,000 bushels, compared with 38,318,000 bushels in 1921; oats, 288,250,000 bushels, compared with 244,455,000 bushels. In Germany the yield of rye is estimated at 210,380,000 bushels, compared with 267,043,000 bushels last year; oats, 284,000,000 bushels, compared with 244,812,000 bushels.

Improvement in Reindeer Herds.

L. J. Palmer, in charge of the government's reindeer experiment station at Nome, Alaska, has just sent in a report to the United States Department of Agriculture that conditions among Alaskan reindeer herds are the best this year in the history of the industry. The fawn crop has been unusually large, and favorable conditions have greatly reduced the ordinary losses. Herd owners who have adopted recommendations of the biological survey for improved handling of the herds report marked gain in size and condition of animals, and a reduction in the losses from those experienced under former methods. Reindeer introduced two years ago on Nunivak Island are doing remarkably well, with the young much larger in size than animals of the same age on the mainland.

Stealing—and Proud of It.
 Representative John W. Langley, from Kentucky, tells this one in Washington, says Everybody's:

A young attorney in Fiberville, who sought county heaven, was on an electioneering tour in his district when he called at a home where the head of the family happened to be absent. He told the mistress who he was and that he was a candidate seeking votes at the coming election.

"And it's you?" she exclaimed. "Why, of course my husband will vote for you, but it was you that got him charged with stealing that meat."

"Say on the charge of stealing the meat," the attorney corrected her. "Charge nothing," said the woman.

"Why, part of that meat is hanging up in the house yet."

DOG HAD REVENGE

How Collie Got Even With Man Who Killed His Mate.

London Standard's Dispatchman, 1922
 Do You Remember, Was Well Observed —Other Good Animal Stories.

Do you like dogs? Well, a reviewer in the Literary Digest. Because if you don't there is no earthly use in calling your attention to "Further Adventures of Lad," by Albert Payson Terhune, but if you are of those to whom the friendship of one of these animals has been given, you will hardly lay down the book before finishing it.

Lad was a collie belonging to the author and who attained the great age of sixteen, the equivalent of ninety-five years of human life. The book relates various incidents in Lad's career in which Mr. Terhune has been obliged to draw somewhat upon his imagination as to detail, but which are none the less true. One of the best of these stories relates the sad death of Lad's mate, Lady, who was run over by a speeding motorist on a country road as she was running near her master's car. Lad's grief was intense as he stood beside the body. Then he moved to where the youthful Juggernaut had alighted for a moment and smelt his footsteps, getting the scent by heart, as it were. For days he grieved, his nights were spent on Lady's grave and then came the cure. Lad accompanied his master to the local country club and while sitting peacefully with him on the veranda a flashy youth appeared, boasting of his speed on the road—a mile in 70 seconds. As he reached the top of the steps Lad's sense of scent informed him that he had before him the killer of his mate, and with a roar he launched himself full at the man's throat. Fortunately he missed it, but he knocked the man down the steps and tore his arm before he could be called off. By this time the dog's mistress had recognized the man, told his story to the assembled club members, and those who had loudly called for a gun at first were now silent, one even going so far as to say, "Good old Laddie."

That night the local justice of the peace called, not to serve a notice on them, but to relate the conclusion of the affair. Indignant members of the club had fallen on the man, runabout, dismantled it and thrown many of the parts in the lake, leaving their cards pinned on the cushions in case the owner cared to go further into the matter. In the meantime the governors of the club had hastily called a meeting and expelled the offender. That night Lad ate a big supper and went peacefully to his own bed.

Another story tells how Lad not only baffled a burglar, but restored the loot which had been taken. "No Trespassing" records the difficulty the master had in getting rid of a picnic party that had elected to camp on his grounds, the help given by Lad in driving them away and their subsequent plan of revenge, which miscarried. "The Intruders" tells the story of a would-be motor thief and how, in the moment of success, he was routed by a large saw, waking from temporary unconsciousness to find himself in the hospital ward of the nearest jail.

Measure His Words.

Bill Doubitt is a Terre Haute lawyer and an enthusiastic member of the Lion's club. The other day two of its members became benedicts and Bill was called on to make the speech when the club presented them with a motley collection of kitchen utensils.

In the course of his remarks, Bill defined "Love." He made it sound as if it were the most glorious and lasting thing in the whole world. But during the speechmaking one of the younger members of the club with a sense of humor whispered, "Sit down, Bill, for goodness' sake, before you ruin your business."

Pressed for an explanation by the fellow next him, the youngster said: "Well, some of these fellows might want a divorce some day, and no one would ever go to a lawyer who belted in the sort of love he's talking about."—Indianapolis News.

Long in Railroad Service.

Among the oldest railroad men in western Ontario is John Quirk of Wingham, who is aged ninety years. Mr. Quirk, though definitely out of railroad work for some time, can look back to 60 active years spent in the service of various steam roads in the province. When he first began railroading in 1867 the engines burned wood, there were no such things as diners and sleepers, cars were linked with pin cooper and the speed attained, under favorable conditions, was only about twenty miles an hour. About the only thing that was the same as it is today was the way that the conductors punched tickets. Mr. Quirk was a conductor during all the 50 years of his railroad service.

Making a Home.

"It takes a heap of living in a house to make it a home," writes Edgar Guest, the Detroit author. And it takes only a little common sense in the selection of furniture to make that home better furnished according to the American sense. Sentiment surrounds the furniture in the home as well as it centers on some particular spot or locality in which that home was built. In fact, sympathy for good furniture means better furnished homes and the treatment of that furniture.

Plenty of Stock.

An eminent author once granted an interview to a journalist who said he had heard the author was interested in stock, and inquired what number of cattle he possessed. "Oh, I have about two thousand head—principally beef," was the reply.

CARRY ON VAST PROPAGANDA

Islam Fraternity Factors of Great Importance Throughout the Whole Mohammedan World.

A spiritual factor of great importance in the Mohammedan world is the fraternity. Islam always had its fraternities, but the two which did the most for its religious and political revival came into existence about the middle of the nineteenth century—the Basmawiyah and the Djamal-ed-Din.

The founder of the Basmawiyah was Sadiq Mohammed Basmawiyah, a descendant of the prophet and a man of learning, piety and goodness. It was strictly pious in character and new, eighty years old, is entering a great spiritual renaissance on Islam. This fraternity has lodges scattered throughout the whole of Islam, but El Senussi, the present leader, has a firm hold on the whole movement and he has kept it from political alliances, Islamic and Christian. He is aiming at a spiritual revival of his people because he feels that Islam cannot regain its complete political independence without its old spiritual life. In a word, the Senussi fraternity is doing preparatory work.

It is also carrying on a tremendous missionary propaganda and converting millions of pagan negroes to its faith. Djemal-ed-Din, unlike Senussi, was less of a theologian and more of a political propagandist, feared and persecuted by the English. He saw Islam's danger and worked hard to stir it up to action. Stoddard says, "It is not too much to say that he is the father of every shade of Egyptian nationalism."

His influence did not end with Egypt. Djemal-ed-Din was no wild fanatic. He knew the forces that faced the Islam world and, like Senussi, only dealing with political matters, he offered advice of real value to his people. "It is plain that the whole Moslem world must unite in a great defensive alliance to preserve itself from destruction; and to do this it must acquire the technique of western progress and learn the secret of European power."

"THE TIGER" ANSWERS SENATORS

Hitchcock, He Says, Voted German Propaganda and to Borah He Points Out How Countrymen Call Him Not Stern Enough.

By Telegram to The Freeman
Boston, Nov. 24.—Former Premier Georges Clemenceau of France, today lashed back at United States Senators Borah and Hitchcock. M. Clemenceau gave an interview to newspaper men in which he denied the senators' accusations against himself and France and hurled a challenge to his enemies.

"The Tiger" declared that Senator Hitchcock's speech was loaded with data obtained from German propaganda and characterized the essential points in it as being "a bunch of lies."

Clemenceau said: "I am glad to tell Mr. Hitchcock that he is in the senate only for a few days, owing to the recent vote."

"Therefore," he declared, "I will be excused from inviting him to come to Europe and challenge him to find anyone who will say I have been a militarist."

In lashing back at Senator Borah's assertion that he was primarily responsible for conditions in Europe because of his influence in the drafting of the Versailles treaty, Clemenceau said that his position was "particularly distressing," since in his country he had been bitterly criticized for not asking from the Germans as much as he should have.

Mrs. Olivet was a resident of this city for the past thirty years, during which time she gained a large circle of friends and acquaintances, who will mourn her death. Besides her husband and son she is survived by one sister Mrs. Louis Altamari of this city and two brothers Nicholas and Samuel of Philadelphia. The funeral will be held on Monday morning from the late residence, No. 66 Prince street at 9 o'clock and from St. Mary's Church at 9:30 o'clock, where a solemn Mass of requiem will be celebrated for the repose of her soul. The interment will be in the family plot in St. Mary's Cemetery.

Mrs. Zuleika A. Russell, widow of the late John B. Russell, was found dead in her home on Bogardus Place, Ellenville, Sunday. She had been living there alone for several months past, her only daughter, Miss May Irene Russell, being in the city. Neighbors had not seen her for several days and that a coat had been allowed to remain out upon the line seemed very unusual. Sunday an investigation was made and O. F. Pfeifferwell forced an entrance into the house and found Mrs. Russell lying dead upon the floor. The remains were taken to the Osteruder parlors, where Doctors Neal and Coles performed an autopsy Monday morning, discovering evidence of a severe hemorrhage of the brain at the back of the head on the right side, which undoubtedly accounted for her death. The deceased was a daughter of the late Frederick Teller and his wife Esther Quick and was born in Ellenville August 18, 1854. George Teller of Ellenville is a brother. Funeral services were held from the late home Wednesday afternoon, conducted by the Rev. C. A. Dann of the Ellenville Methodist Church, of which Mrs. Russell was a member, with interment in the family plot in Pantickkill.

MISERY AND DESPAIR

CUNO CABINET PROBLEM.

By Telegram to The Freeman.

Berlin, Nov. 24.—A woman walked the streets of Berlin today, pale faced and haggard, carrying in her arms a bundle wrapped in black cloth. Her hollow eyes were fixed searchingly upon the passers-by as she picked out the best dressed people from whom to beg money.

"I don't want it for myself," she explained, lifting back the black shawl from her bundle. "I want it to bury my baby."

Wrapped up in the shawl was a tiny corpse. The baby had starved to death.

This episode illustrates the despair and misery of millions of Germans and epitomizes the situation in which the new cabinet of Chancellor Wilhelm Cuno presented itself to the Reichstag this afternoon.

DUE TO MENTAL IRRITATION

Propensity for Smashing Things Explained by British Institute of Industrial Psychology.

What makes the cook smash dishes, even when she is not angry, and what causes a factory hand to damage production unintentionally, has been puzzled out by experts of the National Institute of Industrial Psychology of Great Britain.

"Pieces of mental grit get into human machinery and play hob. A large amount of breakage is due to mental irritation, which is largely a result of fatigue. The worker who is not tired has sufficient energy to use in checking his irritability; the worker who has been performing mechanical motions all day shows his boredom by crashing something to the floor.

Breakage becomes epidemic at times, the British experts have found. Where groups of workers are engaged in handling the same material, excitement, haste, hurry or irritation in one section quickly spreads to another. Where there is a regular flow of material with rush periods it is found that both the excitement of the rush and the reaction of the slack time damage efficiency and incidentally damage the things that are being handled. By introducing a steady flow of material there is a noticeable rise in efficiency.

DIDN'T PAY TO KEEP BOOKS

On the Contrary, New York Store-keeper Found He Made Money by Not Doing So.

A prominent denizen of Wall Street, who summers at a fashionable seashore resort, was annoyed on his return home to receive a bill for a few small trinkets for which he was sure he had paid previously to his departure. Having always prided himself on his efficient business methods, and since the same store had done the identical thing the year before, he wrote a scathing letter to the storekeeper, giving his opinion of the man who employed methods which were the direct antithesis of his own. The incident soon slipped his mind and was not recalled until the following summer when he happened to pass the store. His anger having cooled he determined to give the storekeeper some friendly advice.

"Well," said the storekeeper, in reply to his lengthy discourse, "we don't keep any books and, to tell the truth, it pays us not to. For example, last summer I sold a saddle, but when it came time to make out the bill I couldn't find the life of me remember who bought it. I finally narrowed it down to four people and sent them all bills. As a result, I was paid by three of them, so you see there is no necessity for our keeping books."

Custom of Breaking Money.

To break a piece of money at parting, each keeping a part, was a bond of fidelity at one time among lovers. This came from very remote times, before inns and houses of public accommodation were known.

Travelers had then to trust to the hospitality of strangers living on the road, and it was customary at parting to divide some article, such as a white stone or small coin, and for the host and guest each to take a part, that if the host required similar hospitality from his guest he might claim it by showing his token.

In the Revelation of St. John this custom is referred to where Christ says, "To him that overcometh will I give a white stone," so that at the Day of Judgment he may demand admission into heaven.

Electro-Chemical Colors.

The preparation of mineral and artificial organic colors by the aid of electricity has made considerable progress and it is suggested that the products of the industry may eventually replace those derived from coal tar. Among the colors now produced in commercial quantities by the employment of the electric current are vermillion, Scheel's green, cadmium yellow, Japanese red, cerise or cherry red, Berlin green and zinc white, besides a number of organic colors. The process consists essentially in sending an electric current through a solution containing the elements required for the production by precipitation, of the coloring matter desired.—Exchange.

Famous Old Restaurants.

What is the oldest restaurant in the world now open for business? Paris has at least one restaurant, the Cafe de la Regence, which is more than 200 years old; the Mitre hotel at Oxford, England, is said to be 500 years old; the Rathauskeller at Bremen was built in 1405, the curious little restaurant known as the Bartwurzglocklein, in Nuremberg, which is part of a church, has, it is believed, been serving roast sausages since the year 1400; and the Capello Nero restaurant, in Venice, traces its beginnings back to the year 1376.

Hawaii's Equable Climate.

There is no question but that Hawaii has great natural beauty and a climate that is probably the most equable in the world. The average temperature for 30 years in Honolulu was 76 degrees, 24 hours a day, 12 months in the year. There is probably no other spot in the world that can boast such an even climate; but the rainfall varies according to the location. Honolulu rainfall average about thirty inches a year, but on the windward side of some of the islands the rainfall sometimes reaches 800 and 400 inches a year.—Adventure Magazine.

apostle after the death of Christ is unknown. Tradition says that after preaching the Gospel in Scythia, northern Greece, and Ephesus, he suffered martyrdom on the cross at Patrae, in Achaia, 62 or 70 A. D. A cross formed of beams obliquely placed is styled St. Andrew's cross. St. Andrew is held in great veneration in Russia as the apostle who, according to tradition, first preached the Gospel in that country, and in both Scotland and Russia there is an order of knighthood named in his honor.

The Manatee.

A full-grown manatee is about eight feet long. It has a somewhat shaglike body, with a broad, flattened tail, and its fore limbs, which are furnished with minute nails, are in the nature of paddles. Though manatees live in the sea near the shore, they never voluntarily quit the water, and cannot exist out of it, yet they will speedily drown if prevented from coming to the surface to breathe. Every few minutes, says William Beebe in "The Face of the Jungle," day and night, year after year, they must perform bob up in their queer-looking round heads in order to inhale a lungful of the air which they must have, but in which they cannot live.

Illuminating "Trash." After all, literature exists as "a criticism of life," and popular novels tell us indirectly a great deal more about the world we live in than popular ones. Any novel that sells more than a hundred thousand copies is very informing about the public that reads it. Great literature is above fashion; it deals with the unchanging heart of man. It will tell you the same thing 50 years hence, and what it tells you will still be true. But the book that no one will have heard of 50 years hence tells you a good deal more about the peculiarities of its own decade. That is why "trash" is so illuminating—if it is popular.—Katherine Fullerton Gerould in Harper's Magazine.

Quail Prefers Layer of Eggs.

The auk and other monsters of antiquity laid but a single egg. So do the penguins, petrels, and many tropic birds of today. On the other hand the quail lays from 20 to 30 eggs at a sitting, a record number exceeded only under unusual circumstances by the species of woodpecker known as the flicker. This bird can be placed of her eggs. If a couple are abandoned from the quota in her nest, she will replace them, continuing to lay, if necessary, until she has deposited from 30 to 40 eggs. These will gradually diminish in size until the very last attains only one-half the typical size. A case is recorded where a flicker hen laid 71 eggs in 73 days.

Historic Spot Marked. Wapatomica, Ohio, the site of an old Indian village, where Simon Girty, the "white savage," rescued Sam Keaton, under sentence of death at about to be burned at the stake by Indians many years ago, has been permanently marked by a flagpole from which floats Old Glory. Girty, who lived among the Indians practicing his entire life, made an eloquent plea to save the life of the white trader, which so impressed the savages that they gave Keaton an escort to Newbury, from which point he reached the civilization of his day at Detroit, then little more than a fort and village post.

The AMERICAN LEGION

AMERICANISM WEEK, DEC. 3-9

Government, Legion and National Education Association Co-operating to Make Program Successful.

John J. Tigert, United States commissioner of education, declares a conviction that a great stride toward the goal of Americanism set by the American Legion as one of its greatest programs of service will be made in the week of December 3 to 9, inclusive, which has been proclaimed American Education week.

John J. Tigert

and the National Education association are co-operating with the American Legion in making the week a success. Announcement proclaiming the American Education week followed a conference in Washington between President Harding, Commissioner Tigert and Garland W. Powell, assistant national director of the American Legion. President Harding announced he would issue an official proclamation, followed by similar ones from governors of the states.

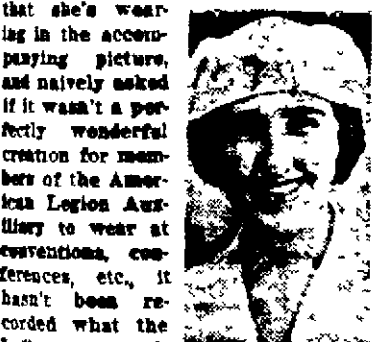

Commissioner Tigert, through the United States bureau of education, will request state and county superintendents of schools to devote the week to the American Legion program, which will start Sunday, December 3. Ministers of all denominations will be asked to preach sermons morning and evening that day on the benefits of education. Mass meetings will be held throughout the United States, at which speakers will be supplied by the American Legion.

Monday will have its special slogan—"Americans All by 1927"—with its drive throughout the country to assist immigrants and aliens to become good Americans, by starting their education in the duties of citizenship. Tuesday will be devoted to patriotism, with such subjects as "Universal Use of the English Language," "Music As a Nation Builder," "The Flag, Emblem of Freedom," and "The Citizen's Duty to Vote," emphasized. Wednesday, better pay for teachers and better schoolhouses will be featured. Thursday will be devoted particularly to the cure of illiteracy. Thursday will be a mighty war on Bolshevism, the strengthening of the fight to eradicate radicalism. Friday will be devoted to "An Equal Opportunity for All in Education," and Saturday, December 9, will be given over to the subject of physical education, the need of more and better playgrounds, the nation's need to develop our forests, the conservation of our soil and places of play in every community.

AUXILIARY MAY ADOPT THIS

Headress Fronted With Blue or Gold Star May Be Approved by the Women's Organization.

When pretty Thelma Sines of Logansport, Ind., donned the headpiece that she's wearing in the accompanying picture, and naively asked if it wasn't a perfectly wonderful creation for members of the American Legion Auxiliary to wear at conventions, etc., it hasn't been recorded what the Indiana women's reply was, but it Miss Thelma Sines is known that all the American Legion fellows who saw the picture immediately voted and urged its unanimous adoption.

Miss Sines' Auxiliary unit, No. 2 of Logansport, submitted the headpiece as the official one to be worn, but frankly confessed that the idea was really born at Columbus, Neb., where that city's American Legion Auxiliary unit presented it, and then Columbus replied that it really was the idea of some of the women of Louisiana.

At any rate, it seemed to be a popular idea—made more so, perhaps, by the wearer herself shown. Miss Sines says she likes it, that it's cool and comfortable, and affords a distinctive headress for the organization.

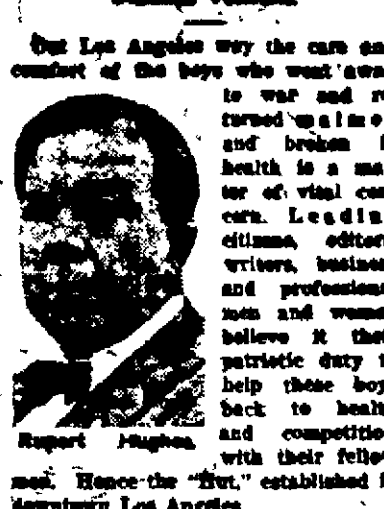

It will be noted that the headress is fronted with a star. A gold star can be substituted for the ordained blue by those who last loved ones in the service.

Old Man Matthews' daughter was reported to be the shrewdest witted and wisest girl in the state. "Which foot, paw?" drawled Nell, opening one eye. "American Legion Weekly."

PLACE TO SELL THEIR WARES

The "Hut," a Downtown Los Angeles Store, Operated for Benefit of Disabled Veterans.

Rupert Hughes

Out Los Angeles way the care and comfort of the boys who went away to war and returned maimed and broken in health is a matter of vital concern. Leading citizens, editors, writers, business men and professional men and women believe it their patriotic duty to help these boys back to health and competition with their fellow men. Hence the "Hut," established in downtown Los Angeles.

The "Hut" is a store, where veterans emerging from hospitals, and disabled veterans at home may sell articles they have learned to make, or where they may work at various trades catering to the general public. The "Hut" was established by a committee which includes such well-known persons as Rupert Hughes, the novelist; Edward A. Dickson, publisher of the Los Angeles Evening Express; Harry Chandler, publisher of the Los Angeles Times; Hays Rice, Stanley Chapman, Louis M. Cole, Rabbi Magin, Henry A. Strauss, Roy L. Larwell, Mrs. John J. Crumbart, Mrs. J. R. Coffman, Mrs. Daisy C. Danziger, Mrs. E. R. Brainard, Mrs. Boyle Workman and other prominent citizens.

The committee was formed and the "Hut" established because of the hundreds of veterans who come from the hospitals with only small, or no compensation, and who during the period of convalescence are in dire financial straits. At the store they may ply their crafts and sell their handicraft, all the receipts their own.

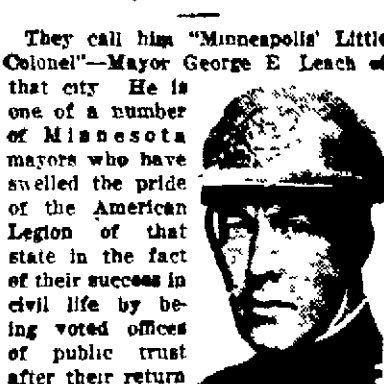

Rupert Hughes is a former service man and a member of the American Legion in Los Angeles. To him all former service men are "buddies." He is never too busy, never too engrossed, to aid in good works which are for the benefit of his former comrades in arms.

As with other American Legion members, the "Hut" project is meeting with Mr. Hughes' approval and active co-operation. "There isn't too much, can never be too much, we can do for our disabled," is a slogan with the novelist.

Among the directors of the "Hut" are representatives of all the American Legion posts in Los Angeles county. The Needlework Guild of America gave $2,000 to get the project started, and the American Legion pledged $250 a month for six months to insure its success. It will be operated on a "strictly business basis," giving the veterans the opportunity to support themselves by their skill in various crafts without any plea for favors or charity from the public.

LEGION MEN PROUD OF HIM

Mayor Leach, "Minneapolis" Little Colonel, One of Several Successful Gopher State Officials.

Mayor George E. Leach

They call him "Minneapolis" Little Colonel—Mayor George E. Leach of that city. He is one of a number of Minnesota mayors who have swelled the pride of the American Legion of that state in the fact of their success in civil life by being voted officers of public trust after their return from war.

Just across that line of "unfriendly relations"—at least that's what some who know the rivalry between the Twin Cities call it—is another Legion executive, Mayor Nelson of St. Paul. And Gophers point to the harmony between the two executives, though they differ radically on many things, as exemplification of the American Legion "buddy" spirit. Other Minnesota mayors who are active members of the American Legion are:

Mayor Cannon of Hibbing, Mayor Maertz of New Prague, Mayor Empe of Virginia, Mayor Quinn of Faribault, Mayor Keating of Eveleth. Then there's Lieutenant Governor Collins, State Bank Examiner Rathbun and State Coal Commissioner Bowen who, though not mayors, are Legionnaires.

Mayor Leach was colonel of the famous One Hundred and Fifty-first field artillery, a regiment which was on the front line for 246 consecutive days. longer, it is said, than any other regiment in the United States army. The regiment took part in all the major engagements, and served with its own division, the Rainbow division, the First, Second, Fourth, Twenty-sixth, Thirty-second, Seventy-seventh and Eighty-eighth divisions.

And the "Little Colonel" was a gallant soldier. He was decorated for bravery in action with the Distinguished Service Cross, the Croix de Guerre, with two palms and star and the Legion of Honor, officers' grade, and after returning to the United States was decorated with the Distinguished Service Medal. He now is colonel of the One Hundred and Fifty-first in the National Guard.

Form Organization.

Nebraska sailors and marines, who attended the state Legion convention at York, Neb., have formed an organization for social purposes.

The Test of a Man

By JUSTIN WENTWOOD

(A. 1211, Western Newspaper Union.)

"Don't touch my hair!" Lizzie shrieked away nervously from her sweetheart as he laid his hand caressingly upon her locks.

"But, darling, if you really cared for me you would let me caress you. You've always shrunk away from me like that. And you've got such beautiful hair. Like spun gold."

Lizzie looked away and said nothing. The young foreman of the mill was greatly troubled. He had loved Lizzie Peabody ever since he first met her standing at her spindle, a newcomer at the mill. They were sweethearts, and yet—every time he asked her to marry him she put him off with uncertainties and excuses.

He left at length, still unable to obtain a definite answer to his suit. And he recalled the advice that another girl had once given him:

"If a girl wants you to touch her and make a fuss over her, then it's all right. But if she doesn't—then take care!"

He went to his work next day, resolved to put all thought of marriage with Lizzie out of his mind. If she didn't care for him—well, then she was just making a fool of him!

He saw her looking at him with imploring eyes that day, but hardened his heart. And something happened soon after midday which effectively put thoughts of Lizzie out of his mind momentarily.

There came a sudden shriek—another, another. There was a rush of workers to a part of the mill. The dynamo was shut off. Too late! One of the mill girls had had her hair caught in the cruel fangs of the mechanism. Her scalp had been torn from her head.

The doctor rushed up. The little group became hysterical. The foreman groaned; accidents like that were rare, and yet bound to happen sometimes, if a girl grew careless.

In spite of his determination to make his sweetheart approach him first he was at her cottage that night. In fact, he found it impossible to stay away.

They talked, of course, of the accident at the mill that day.

"It was terrible," said the young foreman, sympathetically. "Of course the company will compensate her. But what's the use of compensation when her hair's gone? Disfigured for life! Who'll marry a girl like that?"

"Wouldn't you?" asked Lizzie.

The foreman hesitated. "Dear, I—if I was engaged to her I'd—I think I'd stick to it," he answered. "But—Oh, well, what's the use of talking! Poor girl! I'm sorry for her as I can be."

Lizzie darling, do you know I was nearly crazy thinking about you in the mill today? I decided not to come again until you sent for me. And then—well, I just couldn't stay away. Don't you think you've put me off long enough, darling? Won't you tell me, dear?"

She turned to him with sombre eyes. "Well, my dear, since I've got to answer you, it's no," she returned.

"Then you've been playing with me and making a fool of me all this time?"

"Not necessarily."

"You led me to think you cared?"

"I—did care."

"And you don't care any longer?"

"No, I don't care any longer." The words came mechanically from the girl's lips. "I—I don't care, Harry."

"Then you have made a fool of me? What have I done? What's changed you?"

"I—I don't want to answer you."

"All right, I'll go!" He rose up in a fury. "You led me on and on—but I knew all the time you were fooling me, because you wouldn't let me caress you!"

"Don't!" The words seemed forced from her under the stress of unbearable anguish. "Don't go, Harry!"

She was weeping uncontrollably. The foreman stood in the hall, fingering his hat uncertainly. "I'll tell you, then, since you choose to take it that way."

"God, Lizzie, if you knew how I love you!"

"You won't in a minute."

"What do you mean?"

She put her hands on his shoulders. "You remember what you've said this evening? Well, my hair's false. I met with the same accident in a mill in Massachusetts. That's all! Now I don't want your pity. Just go!"

But he held her hands. "Dear—my dear," he stammered, "forgive me! Dear—I love you. I don't care. Forgive me!"

And he found his manhood in the sobbing figure that he pressed to him.

Save Birds Crippled by Storm.

A kindly act by Vienna police is reported by the London Daily Express correspondent in that city, when a cloudburst and a storm of extraordinary violence which deluged Vienna from a tropical heat wave dislodged about a hundred sparrows from their night shelters in the trees in the suburbs of Stammers.

The birds fell to the ground in front of the police headquarters of the district, and their feathers were so wet that they were unable to rise again.

A great crowd of children assembled and were about to take the birds away when a squad of policemen intervened. They caught the birds with much difficulty, and placed them in an old domestic cell for the night, releasing them in the morning.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

by S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

A great deal has been said and written about the value of enthusiasm, and, while we must not underestimate its place in our personal lives or in our business activities, it is well to bear in mind the wisdom of Goethe's observation that, "enthusiasm is of the greatest value, when we are not carried away by it."

Even in the matter of saving there is such a thing as being carried away by enthusiasm. The miser is an example of this. In order to save and get ahead steadily it is vital that we always keep our feet on the solid ground of prudence.

To be effective, saving must be continuous. The person who pinches and saves every possible penny for a short time and then gives up and quits, will never reach the goal of independence or success. Therefore, it is well always to have in mind the matter of moderation. Saving a reasonable amount regularly gives ever increasing stabilization and strength.

When we are strong and well we are apt to pay little or no attention to matters of health. Then if we become ill we suddenly become greatly interested in the care of our physical being and we feel that when we recover we will never again allow ourselves to become neglectful in these matters. It is the same way regarding financial matters. In the vigor of youth or in times of great prosperity, we are apt to disregard the value of thrift. We drift along from day to day and year without making preparations for the future. Then suddenly some misfortune happens and we find ourselves confronted by the stern realities of financial impairment. Possibly we have lost our position through illness or the source of our income is unexpectedly wiped out. Then we think of thrift and make up our minds that if we ever become prosperous again, we shall not neglect to put aside a portion of our earnings for the future.

Being thrifty does not mean that we must be an extremist in the matter of saving money or in giving up rightful pleasures. Cauterize moderation. Do not save to the point of being a miser, nor to the exclusion of the various uplifting elements that should be a part of our lives.

On the other hand, we must use moderation in the matter of pleasure and out of our earnings make sure that we are providing for the lean days that are sure to come.

Useful Flycatchers.
Flycatchers are gray birds. They always perch on the tips of twigs, for their food consists of gnats. Watch one sweep out gracefully, seize an insect that is next to invisible to our eyes, then soar gracefully back to the perch. You can tell a flycatcher by his flight if by nothing else.

School Behind the Times.
Robert's father has an office with all equipments a modern office has. Robert has been told their different uses. When he came home from school after being in the second class, he said: "Daddy, I think our school must be an old-fashioned one. It makes you do your adding by hand."

EGGS FLOPPED OVER WHEN FRIED

The Strange Tale of the Man Who Did Not Like 'Em Served 'Sunny Side Up' and How He Solved the Problem—Another Gallapier Tale.

"How'll you have your eggs," shouted Blink Biven to the other Gallapiers as he was preparing the evening meal at the Roodboy hunting shack in the mountains. It was Blink's week on as cook. The four Gallapiers had arranged the cooking so that each one in turn served a week as chef during their prolonged vacation in the mountains.

"I want mine sunny side up," chanted Zink Biven, while Captain Roodboy and Raiser Turk said it did not make much difference as long as they were fried.

After the evening meal had been cleared away and the boys had gathered around the fire place to swap yarns Blink Biven said that talking of serving eggs "sunny side up" reminded him of an old neighbor of theirs, who had decided aversion to having 'em served that way.

"What he wanted," explained Blink "was fried on both sides, but he was rather lazy, and as he had to cook for himself he sometimes forgot to turn 'em in the frying pan. He always figured it a needless exertion to turn the eggs and was puzzled how to accomplish the feat without wasting energy.

"Well he figured and figured on the problem and finally he decided that he would do a little experimenting with his flock of white Leghorns and he began to feed them a little rubber chopped up fine. He had a lot of old rubbers around the house which he had been too lazy to collect and sell to the junk man, and he used them in feeding the hens.

First of all he began rather kicked on a diet of rubber with their rations, but he overcame that by dipping the rubbers in maple syrup, and finally after about six months he had solved the problem.

"How's that?" asked Raiser Turk. "Nothing easier," replied Blink, "for he had figured that if he fed the hens enough rubber that by and by the eggs might have a little rubber in 'em."

"So he could bounce them like a rubber ball I suppose," interrupted Raiser.

"No," replied Blink, "he had an even better idea and as I was saying after experimenting for about six months he had solved this weighty problem and never after had to eat 'em 'sunny side up."

"Yes, but how?" persisted Raiser. "Why all he would do was to crack an egg and dump it in the frying pan," explained Blink, "and after it had been in the pan about a minute and a half the rubber in the egg caused it to flop over on the other side and all my neighbor had to do was to see to it that the egg remained in the pan just three minutes, and then he would get out of his chair and turn it out on his plate perfectly fried on both sides."

"Huh," granted Raiser, "and I suppose the eggs the eggs tasted like old rubber."

"None," explained Blink, "the funny thing about that was that the maple syrup he had dipped the rubber in before cutting it up and feeding it to the flock added such a distinct flavor to the egg that you never even had a hint of an odor of rubber from them."

"I'm hearing that," interrupted Captain Roodboy. "I am going to turn in for the night."

The others followed his example.

The Fatality of Falling.

Topping the list of accidents is injury by falling and falls from step ladders lead all the others. It is generally thought that the automobile is responsible for most accidents, but there are many different causes which claim more victims than the auto. While 67 persons are killed in auto accidents, 68 are burned to death, 66 on railroads, 111 by falls, 56 by drowning, 26 in mines and 34 asphyxiated.

VOLGA VILLAGE IN AMERICA

New York Community Might in Effect Have Been Transplanted Bodily Into This Country.

Except for its one telephone wire and two automobiles, Little York, N. Y., might be a Volga peasant village transplanted bodily from Russia to the United States.

"It has neither gas nor electricity; neither bathtubs nor sewers; no water supply except a spring.

In fact, Little York isn't even on the map or in the post office guide. None the less it is a place to know about, if not to live in, writes Enla McClary in the New York World.

It is a village of pistachio and chocolate eclairs, sheltering 50 peasant families with a total population of 500. Modern inventions are luxuries beyond the purse of most of the inhabitants, and the desire of the rest.

Covering less than a square mile of fertile meadow and farm land, Little York lies at the foot of Mount Adam and Mount Eve, beautiful hills of the lower Catskills.

The inhabitants, Russian-Germans, Lutherans from the Volga river valley are descendants of those who followed Catherine II from Prussia into Russia when the German princess became the wife of the future czar.

They have brought with them to Little York the traditions and customs as well as the language and religion of their ancestors. Unlike American farmers, the peasants live in communities and work their individual plots of land. The village is situated on the hillside and overlooks the fertile meadow land, divided into various-sized "farms," according to the affluence of the owner. The largest farm has ten acres and the smallest, one.

Flag Donates Owner's Presence. At many of the great country houses in England a "family flag" bearing the coat of arms of the owner of the house, is flown from a flag staff when the owner is in residence.

A Problem in Battery Cost

A battery lasts two years and costs say, $24! Another lasts 18 months, and costs $19.50. Which is the most economical?

The first, of course. The buyer of the second pays $1.50 more for service from his lower priced battery; his advantage is the first-cost saving he makes.

The SJ (oversize) Willard Threaded Rubber Battery is still the standard battery—and the most economical battery you can buy. The SR (full size) is lower in price, and far more economical than the ordinary battery.

PAJAMAS BANISH OLDTIME "NIGHTIE"

The nightgown has nearly gone the way of the hoop skirt and the bustle. Fifty years ago few but aristocrats bothered to change the garment next to their skin upon retiring; then the "common people" began wearing night gowns and the custom spread until 75 per cent of the population were as one as regards a general lack of shape and style when they went to bed. Within the last few years, however, the "nightie" has lost favor with a delectable public until the manufacturers now make one where they formerly made three, and orders are dwindling.

The answer is "Pajamas." These things were brought out by Chester Balts in his business talk to the Kiwanis Club luncheon at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday and were the result of his fourteen years of observation in the manufacture of night clothing, he having been twelve years in charge of the Millen, Alkenhead Company on Railroad avenue and in business for himself the last two years. Recently he bought the building in which he was formerly employed and moved his plant there from Field Court. Mr. Balts described in detail the journey of a length of cloth through the cutting, stitching and pressing departments and how employment conditions have changed for the better. Now the women and girls have every comfort, convenience and sanitary safeguard possible and their wages remain the same the year around, the employer taking a loss when business is poor and endeavoring to strike an average profit when it is good.

Dr. Alenhardt, the younger, won the attendance prize.

There will be no meeting Thanksgiving Day.

Preparations are on for the annual election of officers.

Thursday's was an old-time rousing meeting, with no vacant chairs. Clyde Wonderly, aided by Doc. Gillett and his horn, with Miss Gillett at the piano, led the singers through a song in French with a regular doughboy effect, and then to several other dizzy heights.

BULL WRECKS HOME, THEN DISAPPEARS

Animal Chase Crowd of Men and Boys and Then Plays Havoc With House.

Baltimore.—A runaway bull coming from nobody knows where went on a rampage in Southwest Baltimore. Chased by a crowd of men and boys, he finally dashed into a residence, which he partly wrecked, and then disappeared nobody knows where.

The house in which he sought refuge was occupied by Lewis A. Nash and his family. The bull drove through the back door, knocking it from its hinges and crashing into a gas stove, which he pushed out of his way.

In the next room he found the family, who immediately evacuated. Going next into the front room, the invader wrought destruction right and left. He tore into the wall with his horns, ruining the wallpaper. He smashed a large mirror. Chairs and tables were overturned, cases broken, and still the intruder showed no inclination to depart.

Finally, some one entered the open back door and came up behind the bull and drove him into the street. Outraining a pursuing crowd, the animal disappeared.

PREDICTS OWN DEATH; KILLED

Guests Do Not Heed Host's Remark, Which Comes True on the Following Day.

New York.—Arthur Van Ohlen, twenty-five, of Little Ferry, N. J., and another man were burned by steam and suffocated to death beneath the boilers at the Continental Paper company plant in Bogota, N. J. Van Ohlen had a premonition of death the night before, when his sister was entertaining a party of friends at their home. The party was playing cards, and Van Ohlen's sister, Helen, won two games. Van Ohlen, who had lost, leaned toward her and said laughingly, "Kiss me, sister, I'll be dead tomorrow." Others in the party gave the remark no heed, but when word of Van Ohlen's death reached his home the sister recalled it.

OWL STEALS HENHOUSE KEYS

This Occurred in the Poultry Grounds of the Oregon State Hospital for the Insane.

Salem, Ore.—Hoot owls like chicken meat and a hoot owl has a key to the henhouse at the State Hospital for the Insane. Also the owl has the key that unlocks the switch on the automobile of A. D. Zinner, superintendent of the poultry yards.

It happened like this:

Zinner heard the hoot owl hoot. He feared for the chicks. Not having a gun or a rock at hand, he took a heavy bunch of keys from his pocket, crept within throwing distance of the owl, and let drive.

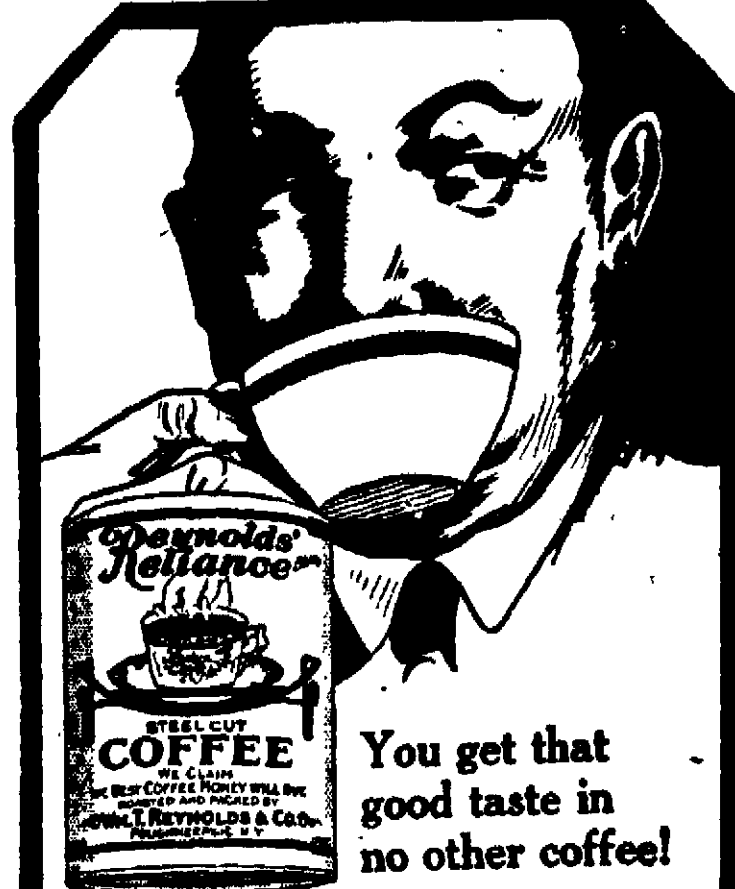

The keys went wild and dropped into the grass. The owl flitted from the tree, picked up the keys, and disappeared.

Awake to Find House Is Sliding Down Hill

Wenatchee, Wash.—George A. Hauber of Peshastin and his family woke one morning to find that the whole house, together with the land surrounding it, was steadily moving down the hill and headed toward the top of an embankment several hundred feet high. Mr. and Mrs. Hauber, awakened at the same time on noticing an unusual sound, succeeded in getting the other members of the family out of the house without difficulty. The house slid on down for a distance of 120 feet and lodged in an irrigation ditch, which prevented it from going over the embankment.

FITE LECTURES ON LLOYD-GEORGE

His Unreliability Finally Put Him Out of Power—English System of Government Held Up As Model That Our Has Good Test Pretty Well.

Lloyd George was the prelude and the postlude to the lecture given by Dr. Fite at St. John's Parish House on Thursday afternoon, and the recent English election was the main composition of the talk.

Dr. Fite recalled that Lloyd George was the prime minister of Great Britain in 1916, following the prime ministry of Asquith. And it was when Lloyd George was the minister of munitions under Prime Minister Asquith that he intrigued against his master, an unpardonable political sin. Asquith was too old a man with war conditions prevailing and Lloyd George's disloyalty ended in the usurpation of his master's office. Following the great Liberal victory of Sir Campbell Bannerman in 1906, Asquith became the Liberal leader in 1908 and held that position up to 1916. Today the conservative party, with Bonar Law, a Canadian and a British subject, at its head, is back in power for the first time since 1906, showing that the Conservatives in the coalition party were tired of their position and were ready once more to play party politics, and withdrew their support of the coalitionists. So the king appointed Bonar Law, a conservative, prime minister.

Then Dr. Fite explained that the king has no power in the government of England. He is but the nominal ruler, all acts being performed by the ministers in the king's name. But when a cabinet crisis arises as recently arose in England, the king asks the leader of the majority party to become the prime minister, acting as his—subordinate. Should there be two leaders of the majority party, the king may show his preference for the one or the other, naming one or the other, a sort of survival of the fittest system, while all the time the people have an informal knowledge of the man who will be chosen.

Dr. Fite said the question might well be asked, "Why did Bonar Law so soon resign?" The answer would be "Because he was not sure of a working majority back of him," and the speaker went on to explain that the political game in England was a sort of game of honor between gentlemen. That is, if the party in power for some reason fell short of a majority they got out and gave the other side a show down. So not being sure of his majority, Bonar Law called for an election.

Dr. Fite then explained the cabinet government of Great Britain as a government by a committee, with the leader in the House of Commons, remaining in power so long as he might have the majority vote in the House. And though elected to the House of Commons a man would not be elected for any stated term. In fact he might be out in a few days.

Then Dr. Fite summed up the advantages of the English form of government over that of the United States.

First, the English government can quickly enact into laws the will of the people. Here it is nearly thirteen months after our representatives are elected before they come into office, and during that time there may be radical changes in public opinion as to many matters. In England, public opinion is quickly crystallized by the House of Commons into immediate action.

Second, England can legislate quickly, the governing majority can secure immediate results. We cannot do that. We are more conservative, and realizing the fact that often public opinion is fickle we go slower. We are not as democratic in this as England.

Third, England can bring about, through her cabinet government an easily workable union between the executive head of the government—the King—and the working power of the government, Parliament, which also really rules the King. There the cabinet ministers do things and also dominate the executive department so there is no friction. We are not always so fortunate. It often happens in the middle of a presidential term that there is a change in the politics of the majority of our legislators causing much friction. The legislative bodies may enact laws which will be blocked by the veto of the executive and the policies of the executive may be out voted by an opposite political legislature. This is so in England.

But there are deadlocks and hindrances in the English form of government. There is the keen-edged criticism of the opposition, on the instant lookout for legislative errors which they view from the outside at the same time they make ready to jump in and control the government. Again there is the disadvantage of the large number of parties in the opposition. Suppose the party in power needs the support of one of the smaller parties how shall it know which one to rely upon for loyal support? This small party may withdraw at any time. It was just such a case that resulted in the wrecking of Lloyd George. Today the strong parties of the opposition are the Labor and the two Liberal parties.

But the cabinet cannot serve two masters. Today the English House of Lords is nothing; today the House of Commons is the power. The House of Lords today cannot say no, even to money matters. There are but few of the House of Lords in the cabinet. Summed up, the English system of government is a king who has no power, for if the ministers have control the king has no control, and the House of Commons has complete control.

The English courts are not like our courts. If the House of Commons does not like certain laws, they may pass a bill to change these laws. We have a written constitution which enforces the standards of our laws. In England the House of Commons is all-powerful and can do anything at any time. As was said before, England has no written constitution, but everything that has passed into a law becomes a part of the British constitution, though some of those laws are more binding morally than others, as for instance the Magna Charta. Dr. Fite said that England has the finest budget system in the world. They have an excellent civil service system, considerably better than ours.

And though Dr. Fite found so much in the English system of government to admire, he did not advocate a change to that system for us. Having worked along fairly well for 125 years with great achievements to our credit, he thought we should continue our constitutional form of government, rather than let that constitution go by the board.

But Dr. Fite did concede that England has the finest form of a cabinet system of popular government in the world as shown in South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, Canada and Newfoundland. It is a great compliment to England that France, Italy and Germany have copied this form of colonial government as closely as they could.

On the other hand we have our federal system government whereby 48 sister states get along under one governing power. To be sure we had one quarrel from 1861-5 but there has been no further signs of quarrelsomeness.

Wherever possible Great Britain also has adopted a government of allies on a large scale, creating a federated Canada, a federated Australia, a federated South Africa. Again the compliment of imitation; the German empire, now the Republic of Germany has tried to follow out a similar federated theory.

The speaker showed that there was no election by parties in England such as we have. There is no national nominating convention as there is one to be elected stands for the whole country. In place of our nominating conventions or direct primaries, the English nominate—so to speak—by petition. If there is just one man who does not wish to truckle to any boss and can get twelve signers to his petition he stands a chance of election. If there is only one man up for election by a party those in charge of "polling day," declares him elected. But if there are two, three or four men nominated, the ones in charge of the polls on polling day call for the people to cast their ballots. In England a contested election is when the English people are called upon to cast their ballots, while with us the contested election comes after election day and the contest is settled by congress. In England the women over 30 can vote at an election. In times past there was also the plural vote, which means that if a man held real estate, etc., in different districts, he could vote in each district. But that no longer happens as the elections take place in all districts on the same day now. And as was said before, directly following an election the House of Commons meets.

Going back to Lloyd George Dr. Fite said he had lost his hold because the conservatives were tired of the non-partisan rule; because he was so criticised for not keeping his word; but more than all because of the sudden defeat of the Greeks by the Turks. England wants to keep India—and the way to India open. She wants to get the Turk out of Constantinople if possible, and she feared that Lloyd George was on the point of letting the Turks back into Constantinople and of giving them territory around Constantinople. Then because of his disloyalty to his master in the past and his intriguing with the enemy, he had wrecked his own party which hated him, and naturally the opposing party also hated him, so that now he is a man without a party.

Following the lecture, several questions were asked and there was some profitable discussion.

Dr. Fite announced that there would be no lecture next week, Thanksgiving Day, but that he would resume the lectures the week after.

ROMANS BELIEVED IN OMENS

All Kinds of "Signs," Good and Bad, Had Direct Influence on Their Actions.

The ancient Romans were great believers in signs and seldom cared to undertake an enterprise without consulting them. Some persons looked at birds flying overhead. Others cut up animals, to see what "signs" were inside. Perhaps most interesting of all was the custom of keeping certain chickens and calling them sacred. If some one wanted to know if a plan would succeed, he tried to feed the chickens. If they ate heartily, it was a good sign. If they refused to eat, the plan was probably given up. When a Roman died, food and drink were placed beside his body in the tomb. Animals were sacrificed, and milk or wine was thrown on the ground. This was repeated every year. If the relatives forgot, the soul was supposed to become evil and to bring bad luck. Animals were sacrificed in honor of the gods, as well as for the spirits of men. Pigs, oxen and sheep were the creatures most often killed. Flour and salt were sprinkled over each animal, its head was covered with cloths, and then the priest raised a large knife or an ax for the death-dealing blow. Prayers were said by those looking on. The bones and fat were placed on the altar and burned.

A Fish Story.
A couple of city chaps summering in the mountains overheard sufficient fish stories to stir them to the desire to emulate the native anglers. Not having equipment they persuaded the village storekeeper to lend them some of his own personal outfit with the understanding that any parts lost or broken would be paid for or replaced. They had been out on the lake in a boat about half an hour when one of them inquired of the other: "What do you suppose Barn Hawkins calls that red-and-blue thing that floats around on the water?" "Why, I believe he calls it a float or a float or a bob or something of that nature. What made you ask such a question?" "Well, we have to buy one of those. The darn thing has sunk."—Every-body's Experience.

Committee of Four Women Apply the Lash to Mrs. Tatum, Near Dallas, Tex.

BODY MASS OF BRUISES

Captors Accuse Her of Mistreating Her Daughter and Are Deaf to Her Denials—Man Holds Her While Being Whipped.

Fort Worth, Tex.—Seized by a man and four women, hustled into an automobile and taken to a deserted spot near the Trinity river, where she was given 100 lashes by her captors, Mrs. I. C. Tatum of the little village of Stop Six, near Dallas, is slowly recovering from her bruises and the nervous shock of her harrowing experience.

Mrs. Tatum's account of the affair is to the effect that she was called to the door of her home by two women, who said that they would take her to her daughter, who had been missing for some time. When Mrs. Tatum entered the waiting automobile she found there were four women in the machine and a man driving. The machine sped away to a lonely spot near the river, where the woman was handcuffed and held by the man, while the four women used the lash on the victim. Her body is a mass of bruises, according to her aunt, Mrs. Jane Floyd.

The whipping was given by a "committee of four" of the "Ladies' Invisible Eye."

No Previous Threats.

A communication addressed to newspapers stated the whipping was administered for alleged mistreatment of her daughter, Naomi Tatum, fourteen years.

No threats of any kind had been received by Mrs. Tatum prior to the occurrence. One woman who whipped her told Mrs. Tatum they were from Dallas. One of the women was masked, Mrs. Tatum said.

"Mrs. Tatum has had some little trouble, but none that would merit such treatment," Mrs. Floyd said. "Several women of her church have asked that the daughter, Naomi Tatum, be educated by the church. This Mrs. Tatum objected to. She and her husband have had a little trouble over the girl, but it has happened only when the mother whipped the daughter."

"When she got in the car and they had driven a short distance the women told her they were members of a secret society from Dallas and accused her of mistreating her daughter and that as Tarrant county women would not act they would show her that Dallas women would."

Mrs. Tatum is thirty-six years old and insists that she was mistreated without cause. In a statement issued from her bed Mrs. Tatum said:

Denies Charges.

"They told me I had mistreated the child. I told them I hadn't. Finally the man caught hold of the handcuffs with one hand and placed the other hand over my mouth. Three of the women began whipping me."

"Finally, they quit and started to put me in the car, when one of them asked, 'Gee, do you think she has enough?' One of the women replied she thought I needed more. The man caught me again by the handcuffs and the whipping started."

"I was growing weaker. I was about to faint. Each lash seemed as if it would make me unconscious. The man, I believe, saw I was about to faint and he told them to stop."

"Then they helped me back in the car."

Taking a Health Inventory

John Gould, while shaving one morning, suddenly realized that he was looking ill. His skin seemed to have assumed a gray, ashen color and his eyes had dark circles and yes—there was a red bump coming on his forehead. Indigestion!

"My heavens!" ejaculated John. "I'm not an old man. Why have I this color?" He glanced down at himself and a sudden horror flooded over him. "I'm getting flabby. Good grief! I'm getting a 'tummy!' And I'm only thirty-five!"

Certainly nothing worse could happen to a man, thought John. He immediately began to ponder on the situation and concluded that a stiff overhauling was necessary. "Exercise and more exercise, no luncheon to speak of, no fattening foods," declared John to himself. "I'll begin today."

So great was his haste to gain health that even his shave had to suffer. A slight cut on the chin testified to this and with it still paining him, Mr. Gould dived into a trunk for some Indian clubs. He thereupon began a frenzy of setting-up exercises. He labored until the perspiration rolled down his face and his back ached like a tooth.

The morning's duties seemed wearisome indeed and when noon came, the suddenly-stole gentleman realized that he had determined to refrain from luncheon. He kept to his desk—though pangs of hunger assailed him like a knife. He glanced at the offending part of his anatomy and could almost imagine it smaller. Fair compensation, thought the heroic Mr. Gould. So he stuck at his desk and his tasks all afternoon. No fresh air, no walk, no shaking up of the system, and by five o'clock he betook his tired self to the street.

"I can't walk today," he thought. "I'm a wreck." Thereupon he descended into the germ-laden subway.

Became Really Ill.

Well, the upshot of this sad tale of the strenuously conscientious Mr. Gould was that within a week of such suddenly changed habits our hero was really ill. He went to his doctor and received, as he deserved, a good lecture and some sound advice.

"Why didn't you come to me at first?" he was asked.

"Nothing the matter with me, Doc," he replied. "Why should I fork out my money to you when I wasn't sick?"

"That's where you people make half your mistakes," answered the doctor. "Come to me before you get sick and I'll show you how to keep from ever getting into such a wrecked condition. You have been needing treatment for weeks and now you are really a sick man."

Mr. Gould's theory about going to the doctor is that of countless others. The doctor to them is for no purpose save curing them, snatching them from death, rather than from sickness.

Nowadays, persons who understand the ways of health advocate periodic physical examinations by physicians. In this way, disease is prevented or at least taken in time for early and less difficult cure.

The need for such examinations was brought home forcefully at the time of the war when, according to an analysis of defects found in drafted men prepared by the office of the surgeon general of the U. S. army, 2,000 men were found to have tuberculosis in an active or suspended form. All but 1,200 of this number were unqualifiedly rejected from the service. Out of every 1,000 men examined 25 were found to have frank or suspected tuberculosis. This meant that from the "flower of the land" men between the ages of eighteen and thirty, two and one-half per cent had tuberculosis. Such a condition is scarcely believable.

Frequent Examination Necessary.

In the prevention of sickness by frequent overhauling no disease can be better kept in check than tuberculosis. Infection usually takes place in childhood. The germs enter the system more easily at that period of life and oftentimes remain dormant and inactive until a weakened condition of the system causes them to become active tuberculosis. When we find that there are 1,000,000 persons with the disease in an active form in this country alone, and as many more inactive cases, then is the realization forced upon us that every precaution must be taken to protect against its spread.

During the fifteen years that the National Tuberculosis association and its affiliated agencies have been carrying on their big educational campaign the number of deaths from tuberculosis has been cut in half. Yet, in 1920, the last year for which statistics are available, 122,000 persons died in the United States from tuberculosis.

Living from day to day in a well-balanced way to keep the human machine in good trim, and having this machine periodically inspected by an expert physician are two methods of prevention urged by the National Tuberculosis association and its affiliated agencies. They have been instrumental in making it possible for everyone to have this done at clinics. A consultation with a physician may be had there for the asking.

To help spread a knowledge of tuberculosis in order that it may be prevented and thus decrease the yearly death toll, the National Tuberculosis association and its 1,200 branch organizations carry on an annual Christmas Seal sale. The fifteenth sale will be held in December.

That's Different.

Times were hard and bill collectors came nearly every day to see Ole. This annoyed him very much. Every time a collector came he threw up his hands, shook his head and talked Norwegian. One day a moving-machine collector called and found another collector ahead of him, also trying to get money from Ole.

"I've been working on him for nearly an hour, but the poor fellow can't understand a word of English," said the first collector, "so there's no use of wasting any more time on him."

"That's too bad," returned the other. "I wanted to tell him that as I was coming up the road one of his cows broke through the fence and is—"

Before he could say another word, Ole jumped three feet from the ground and shouted: "By jinks! jump up, var she go!" and disappeared down the road in a cloud of dust.—Forbes Magazine.

Salute the Doorman.

They are telling a story at the Army and Navy club at Washington of a certain officer who is quite near-sighted. It seems the other night that he was to call upon some friends in an apartment house on Sixteenth street, and when he arrived he saw what in the dim light appeared to him to be a full general, an admiral or some other high ranking officer, and being mindful that the provisions of making salutes only mandatory on the field had not yet gone into effect, he snapped into a military posture and smartly saluted. The salute was answered, but it turned out afterward that the officer in question had given the army sign of recognition to the gorgeously costumed doorman of the apartment house.

KINGSTON PLAYS AT TROY TONIGHT

WEEKLY MEETING OF HI-Y CLUB

and Schenectady on Saturday Evening—Morgenweck's Newburgh proposition intended to help players physically and financially.

The Kingston players of the New York State Basketball League, will face stiff opposition in their contest this evening with Troy at the local court. Saturday night the locals play in Schenectady.

Favorable consideration is being given Manager Morgenweck's proposition to play at Newburgh one night a week by the Armory Athletic Committee of Newburgh. Strong professional quintets from the metropolis would oppose the Morgenweck clan.

Manager Morgenweck stated that the reason for his offer to play at Newburgh, was mainly to keep his players in shape and secondly so that they could earn more money. Morgenweck has a payroll consisting of nine men. Charlie Powers and Borgman are paid monthly, the remainder of the clan are paid according to the number of games they perform in. Without the services of C. Powers and Borgman, who get enough playing in the league games, Artus, Nick Harvey, Artie Powers, Levinson, Knoblauch, C. and M. Husta would be Newburgh's representative team.

Principal Lewis Tells Boys to Choose Work They Like—Preparing for Older Boys' Conference.

Wednesday evening, the Hi-Y Club met for its weekly meeting, at which time it was announced that there will be no meeting next Wednesday evening. After the supper, the fellows were given a short talk by one of their own number, Principal Lewis. Mr. Lewis said that there was just one thought which he wished to convey and the way in which they enjoyed their supper was an illustration of it. He ventured that no one would feel any ill effects from what he had eaten there, and the reason was that the meal was enjoyed. It is the same way with work. The job that is agreeable is the one which gives more than material success, and more often brings larger returns than the one in which nothing but money is sought. The great financiers who have made vast fortunes have been the men who followed their business because they had interest in their work, and found pleasure in performing their tasks. The position that appeals to the boy, the one in which he believes he can find the most fun, is the one he should take, and then he should follow up that business or trade with all the enthusiasm he has. If a man is interested in his work and finds pleasure in it, he is bound to be a success.

After the meeting the Bible class met, and then the fellows who are in the Hi-Y basketball league went to the gymnasium for a practice game. The bowling alley had been put in place in the boys' department, and the fellows are having a fine time with it. Another entertainment is in store for the "Y" members. On November 29 a group of young people from the Trinity M. E. Church will give a short play in the boys' rooms.

Nearly everything is in readiness for the Older Boys' Conference, which is to be held here December 1, 2 and 3. There are still one or two places needed for delegates. Anyone wishing to entertain any of the fellows should get in touch with Mr. Hall as soon as possible. Members of the Rotary Club will take the boys for an auto trip around the Ashokan reservoir on the afternoon of Saturday, December 2. Any member of this organization who will loan his car for the afternoon should see Mr. Hall as soon as possible.

Henry Wilgus has purchased the auto bus which is on the route between High Woods and Saugerties, and will make semi-weekly trips for the winter months, Wednesday and Saturday.

All About Brother.
While in college I attended a dance with a young man of whose dancing and conversational powers I knew nothing. I spent a miserable evening, for he was a disappointment in every way.

After a party the girls at our sorority house always gathered in one room to discuss the evening. "When I came into the room the first question asked me was, 'Well, did you have a good time?'" "I sunk wearily into a chair and said, 'Girls, there was only one man at that party worse looking—worse in every way than my date—Randall Depew.'"

Absolute silence reigned. I looked up to see Randall Depew's sister sitting opposite me. My cheeks still burn when I think of this embarrassing incident.—Exchange.

Playing for Pussy.
A playing for cats has been patented by Edith F. Kettle of Medford Mass. It is a small, short metal cylinder with perforated ends and is meant to contain catnip. The end pieces are merely paper discs easily inserted in ring-shaped openings provided for them. The toy rolls about, and for that reason is attractive. The catnip is in its shell, and pussy manages, after a while, to clear through one of the paper ends and get at the contents.

Crushing Retort.
"Hello, dearie," said the fresh young man with a "toothbrush" mustache and dressed to the minute, "a glass of sweet milk and a piece of lemon pie." "Anything else?" asked the fair but haughty waitress. "A little speed and a smile, if you don't mind."

"You've got all the speed you need, and as for a smile, look at yourself in one of them mirrors along the wall. If that don't give you a laugh, you ain't got no sense of humor."

Not a Dust Collector.
Will Fawter was painting a Brown county scene when one of those outlying friends whose words outstrip knowledge approached him. It must have resembled a bad smear or dash to the eye. He watched the artist a few moments, and then inquired: "Do you just leave it rough like that or how do you smooth it down?" "Oh," replied Mr. Fawter, "I sandpaper it when I get back to the studio. If I leave it that way, you see, it would catch dust."—Indianapolis News.

IMPROVED ROADS

WAR MATERIAL DISTRIBUTED

Steady Surplus Supply Being Sent to Various States by Bureau of Public Roads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A steady supply of surplus war material suitable for highway construction is being distributed to the states by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, which acts as a clearing house. A force of about 275 persons is kept in the field taking inventories and preparing material for shipment.

Lists of material available are sent to each state highway department, and a period of 30 days allowed for the submission of requisitions. The material is allotted to the state on the same basis as monetary federal aid for road construction, a value being placed on each item and a record kept of the total value received by each state. Up to February 1 of this year the value of the material thus distributed amounted to $120,000,000, of which $80,000,000 represented the value of motor vehicles and parts.

Recently an inventory was taken of about $40,000,000 worth of material at Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill., part of which will be returned by the War department and the remainder, suitable for road work, soon will be available for distribution. The work is being rushed, so that the material may be used for road work early in the season and the camp cleaned up by August 1.

Other surplus war materials recently received for distribution and located at Schenectady, N. Y.; Watertown, Mass., and Dover, N. J., include 200 carloads of brick, about half of which is suitable for highway paving; 5,000,000 pounds of nails, 1,000,000 pounds of staples, 1,000,000 square feet of concrete reinforcing mesh, 100,000 monkey wrenches and 125 carloads of picks and pick handles.

MUD AS A DEFECT

A West Virginia educator at the National Education association conference was asked what he regarded as the greatest defect in American education, and he said in his district it was mud. Bad roads can be the greatest defect in any community. They can be the greatest defect in education, when they do not permit the regular attendance of children in school. They can be the greatest defect in farming, when they do not permit the moving of crops. They can be the greatest defect in any kind of activity, when they prevent the communication needed. A bad road is a bad road, whether it is a bad street car system, a bad steam road or a mud road in the country.

Believe Me:
It is hard to forgive undue pride on the part of another, but that of the new driver owner, who succeeds in guiding his car into the garage for wheels or fenders on the door, is generally speaking, pardonable.

Headaches may be acquired by overeating, but not often by over-

Oh, Shut Up!

"Well, well! Did it hit her?"

Grass widows of Denver object to being called that in the directory.
Nothing green about a grass widow.

Patient—Yes, I've been practicing

A Distinct Advantage.
"Isn't it perfectly wonderful that we can sit here in our own home and listen to a lecture or a sermon hundreds of miles away?"
"Yes, and the best part of it is that we can shut it off whenever we please."

Nothing Left.
A girl had gone to a dinner in New York with her steady. The young man noticed a speck of what appeared to be lint on her shoulder.
When she wasn't looking he attempted to knock it off with his finger. After several attempts he took hold of the fleecy stuff and when he seemed to have all of it threw the wad under the table. That night the girl told her mother that she had a perfectly lovely time. "But," she added, "I have been lying here in bed, mother, wondering what has become of my union suit."

No. If the rats can't eat what we have in the house, let them leave."

If we didn't have a fire occasionally how could we know whether the hydrants were out of order?

Dear old gentleman seated next to debutante, who asked him if he didn't like bananas. Business of "Hey" and loud "I say." Old gen-

WOMAN BURIES HER BABE ALIVE

Follows Ancient German Superstition Which Came Down
From Heathen Times.

Berlin.—The mother of an illegitimate child, following an ancient German superstition which has come down from heathen times, deliberately buried her baby alive near Oppeln, Upper Silesia, recently. Those believing in the old superstition hold it is no crime to do away with a child born out of wedlock, provided the baby is buried by moonlight in a cemetery.

The superstition provides, however, that the shadow of a cross, thrown by the moon, must fall over the body of the infant as it is lowered alive into

Carried Out the Ancient Rite of Burial.

its grave. Consequently, Apollonia
Poser, a simple woman of Oppeln, acted when she found herself burdened with a six-week-old child.

The woman actually carried out this ancient rite of burial. Seeking the body of her child, the police discovered, buried behind the same cross where the moon monthly cast its shadow, the bodies of three other babies. The strong supposition is that these children were made away with in accordance with the same superstition.

HATPIN BETTER THAN KNIFE

Girl Puts Assault to Rest Who Attempted to Kiss Her on Lonely Road.

New York.—Sheriff Davis' deputies are seeking a man who had grabbed and tried to kiss Miss Mildred Mc-Claves, twenty, near Poughkeepsie.
He accosted her near her home.

A knife the man carried proved to be no match for a hatpin Miss Mc-Claves pressed into service to put him to rout.

The young man grabbed her at a lonely place on the Manchester road.
She fought and he flourished a small knife. Miss McClaves counter-attacked with the hatpin and he fled when an automobile came along.

Save for slight lacerations on the right hand, Miss McClaves escaped un-harm.

FOUND DEAD BESIDE COFFIN

Aged Miner Ends His Life After Long and Unsuccessful Search for Gold.

Treks, Cal.—George Balnes, an aged miner, was found alone in his shack, near Sawyer's Bar, with one wrist slashed, lying alongside a homemade coffin lined with flour sacks.
Near by were a will, burial garments and an empty poison bottle.

A grave, evidently dug with his own pick and shovel, was outside the shack.
Miners declared Balnes had waged a long, unsuccessful search for gold.

Man Killed While Trying to Stop Suicide of Girl

Opal Davis, twenty-six years old, of Birmingham, Ala., who killed K. B. Lyons accidentally when she sent a bullet into her own breast in an effort to commit suicide, is under arrest on a charge of murder. The warrant was served on her in the hospital, where it is reported she will recover, although the bullet went entirely through her body and struck Lyons in the head.

Coroner Russell held that the girl, in attempting suicide, was trying to take a human life, and the fact that she killed another while he was trying to stop her from killing herself makes her guilty in the same degree.

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MR. TURKEY GOBBLER

"Friends," said Mr. Turkey Gobbler, "and relatives. I have yet another speech to make. In fact, when the time of the year draws near—Thanksgiving day—I like to talk. I like to strut. I like to tell the friends and the cousins all about ourselves. Now, as I was saying the other day, we are a very favored family. People honor us, and it is right that they should. If they did not appreciate us they would be foolish. But they never want to be foolish, and so they honor us."

"Now they admire us when they have us for Thanksgiving dinner. As I said, only the other day, they don't bother to admire others in the same way. They never say how magnificent a family the pig family is as they eat their breakfast. No, they never do that with the pig family, and stop sipping their morning coffee to address a piece of bacon by saying: 'Look at that magnificent pig! Not a bit of it!'"

"Yes, they take time over the turkey and they praise the turkey, and they have as the main food of one of the very important days of the year the turkey and his family."

"Perhaps it is not very pleasant to be the guest of honor at a dinner table as the turkey is the guest of honor. Instead of sitting at a place by the table he sits upon the big platter. But this is what the turkey thinks about all that."

"For days and days and weeks before Thanksgiving day we are given more and more tempting, delicious food to fatten us up, and as we're being fattened we are also enjoying life so much, so very, very much. We get deliciouses the others do not get, and we stay at home and enjoy them. The turkey wouldn't miss his autumn food for anything—not even if at the end of the time he was to be eaten himself."

"And for this great time of the year we save ourselves with such care. Well do I remember when we took the nest in the springtime and filled it with leaves and grass. Then Mrs. Gobbler hatched the dear precious eggs and I stood by and gave her a warning gobble-gobble if danger was near."

"And then when the little ones were hatched out how very careful we were to see that during the first four weeks of their lives they should not get their feet wet. If a Mother Turkey can get her children through the first four weeks of their lives in good health, then they will be strong ever after. But they must not get their feet wet during that time. That is where we are so different from other animals."

"It's Fine to Be a Turkey."

"Ah, friends and relatives, life is very good when we think that people are so appreciative of the turkey family."

"I think I will sing a song about it." So Mr. Turkey Gobbler gobbled and kept time strutting, and this was his song as he called it:

It's fine to be a turkey and to gobble, gobble, gobble!
Were I only a duck I'd just wobble, wobble, wobble.
But I'm a turkey, so I do far more than wobble;
I strut, if you please, and I gobble, gobble, gobble!"

"Fine," the other turkeys said.

"I thought you'd like that," smiled Mr. Turkey Gobbler. "I made it up as I sang."

"Did you, indeed?" the others asked. "I did," said Mr. Turkey Gobbler. "I was what you might call inspired, which means I had marvelous thoughts."

"Of course," said Mr. Rooster to Mrs. White Hen, "we might call it inspired, and then again we might not."

"True, very true," said Mrs. White Hen.

"I'll make up another song some time for you," Mr. Turkey Gobbler said, "just to show you how easy it is for me to do those little things."

"Or perhaps the next time there is going to be a song we will all sing. That would be a fine idea."

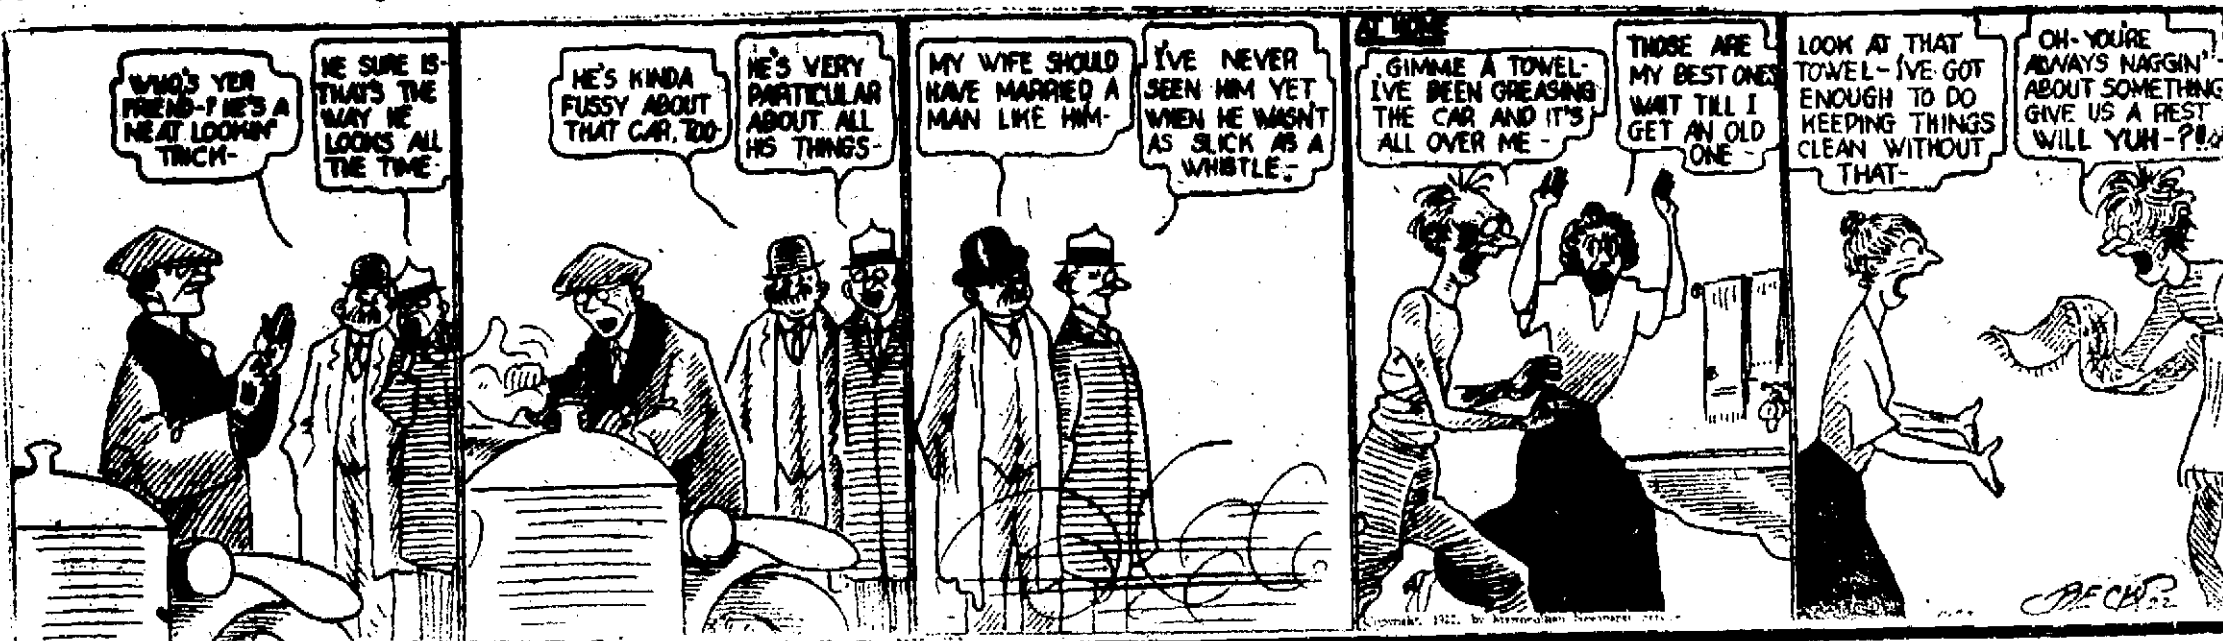

"In the meantime I must have a little meal."

"Why," said Porky Pig with an amused grunt, "he talks like a member of our family would do. He has a right to strut when he shows how much sense he has!"

MORE DESSERTS

There is no more welcome dessert than a beautiful cake. Served with a dish of fresh or canned fruit, it is better than too rich pastries.

Green Mountain Cake.—Break two eggs into a measuring cup, fill with sour cream, add one and one-quarter cupfuls of flour, one cupful of sugar, a little salt, one-quarter teaspoonful of soda, one teaspoonful of baking powder and flavor to taste. Beat well and bake in layers. Put together with boiled icing colored with green and stirred thick with chopped walnuts. Reserve sufficient white icing to decorate the top, putting it on with the handle of a teaspoon in thick swirls. Sprinkle nuts on top of each little mountain peak and touch lightly with the green icing.

Pistachio Roll.—Bake a layer of sponge cake as for jelly roll, spreading it thinner than for the regular jelly roll. While warm spread with marshmallow filling tinted green. Wrap and turn the lapped edges down or wrap in paper and tie. When serving, lay on a platter and cover with whipped cream. Dip the tines of a fork in green coloring fluid and streak the cream. Serve with a sauce made from canned raspberries.

Apple de Luxe.—Chop finely three-fourths of a cupful of chopped raisins and nuts. Wash and core four tart apples of uniform size and shape. Put into a baking dish, cover with cold water and bake slowly. Do not let them lose their shape. Fill the centers with the chopped mixture and when the apples are cool cover with a powdered sugar frosting flavored with vanilla. When firm and cold coat with chocolate and we have apples Allegritti.

Straw Pineapple.—Select a perfect pineapple, scrub well, cut off the top and reserve. Remove the center and chop fine, straining off the juice. Add the chopped pulp to a vanilla blancmange and fill into the cavity. Place on ice and serve cold with a thin custard sauce, using the juice of the pineapple for flavoring. Replace the top and bring to the table to serve.

SUPERVISORS END ROAD ACCOUNTING

$65,000 Bond Issue to Pay for Construction — Towns' Maintenance and Repairs Levied.

The board of supervisors closed their business in relation to highway accounts Thursday evening, and recommended that bonds in $65,000 be issued on the county proceeds from which be paid the county treasurer to reimburse him for moneys paid out for construction of highways and bridge purposes.

The committee on highway accounts reported that they had examined all claims presented and found them correct and recommended their payment, the amount claimed being, $754.20; amount allowed, $754.20. The committee reported favorably the resolutions of supervisors Hamilton, Avery and Charlton, respectively, that there be levied on the county $1,000 for bridge repairs in Hardenburgh, and $150 for bridge repairs in the town of Kingston; also that $55,400 be levied on the county for the construction and improvement of highways in towns under the state highway law. On motion of Supervisor Charlton the report of the committee was adopted.

The committee on town and county accounts reported that the report of the county treasurer as to payments by him of $54,000 for cost of construction on New Paltz-Highland highway, and of $17,330.91 for construction, Rosendale village highway, total of $65,330.91, was correct, and recommended that bonds be issued in the sum of $65,000 payable $5,000 each year, and that balance of $330.91 be assessed and levied on the county and when collected paid to the county treasurer to reimburse him. Further the committee recommended that the amounts recommended for maintenance of county highways and repairs of state and county highways be assessed upon the respective towns of the county for such purposes.

The following resolutions were read and laid over under the rule:

Supervisor Schoonmaker — That the several highway bills reported allowed by the committee on highway accounts, being $754.50, be levied on the county and paid.

Supervisor Elsworth—That the report of the committee on town and county accounts be approved and adopted and that $330.91 be levied on the county and paid the county treasurer to reimburse him for the amount paid out by him; also that it will be necessary to raise on various towns the following sums for maintenance and repairs of state and county highways:

Supervisor E. Young—That there be levied upon the town of Marlborough the sum of $750 for lighting purpose in the Milton Light District.

Supervisor Breithaupt—That there be levied upon the town of Shandaken $6,107.50 to pay bonds and interest to savings banks; also $3,633.53 to pay certificate and interest; also $126.10 to pay interest on bonds.

Supervisors Schoonmaker, Charlton and Auchmoody—That whereas, Section 320-b of the Highway Law provides that the State shall pay annually to the several counties, as in said section provided, an amount equal to the amount levied for the construction and improvement of highways or roads not to exceed in any one year an amount equal to thirty dollars ($30.00) per mile for the total mileage of highways in such counties outside of cities and incorporated villages, and

Whereas, the total amount which the County of Ulster is entitled to receive under said Section 320-b of the Highway Law, is the sum of fifty-five thousand four hundred forty dollars ($55,440.00).

Now therefore, pursuant to the provisions of Section 320-a of the Highway Law, and the resolution adopted by this Board on the 21st day of December, 1920, be it

Resolved, That there be assessed and levied upon the taxable property of the County of Ulster, the sum of fifty-five thousand four hundred forty dollars ($55,440.00), the same when collected, to be paid to the County Treasurer of the County of Ulster to be by him placed to the credit of the County Road Fund and to be disbursed by him in accordance with the future act and determination of this Board.

Supervisor Brink—That there be levied upon the town of Ulster $2,000 to pay certificate of indebtedness.

CURRENT OFFERINGS*AT THE THEATERS

"Peacock Alley" which opened yesterday at Keeney's Theater for a three day engagement, is a ravishing, dazzling Mae Murray presentation with that magnificence and splendor which mark the blond star's offerings of the screen. It is gorgeously costumed and excellently directed, the story running smoothly to its romantic conclusion. It pictures the romance of a famed Parisian dancer who falls in love with a small town American youth and then finds that the home folks will not accept her because she has been a dancer.

"Reported Missing" at the Kingston Opera House again tonight and Saturday, is a picture which lives up to the slogan adopted for it, namely, "The greatest action picture ever made." Owen Moore is the center of more amusing and thrilling scenes in this laugh producing melodrama than once could expect in a dozen photoplays. Buster Keaton in the comedy "The High Sign" is also programmed. Double feature day at the Auditorium offers Frank Keenan in the western action story "The Silver Girl" and Bessie Barriscale in "The Broken Gate," a romance of a self-sacrificing mother for her flapper daughter. Saturday Frank Mayo in "Wolf Law."

Imagine a man with a revolver bent on taking the life of another man, the two locked in an elevator between floors of a big New York hotel! That's one of the thrills of "The Ghost Breaker," a Paramount picture with Wallace Reid as star and Lila Lee as the leading woman which has its last showing at The Orpheum Theater today. Also four vaudeville acts.

Typhoid in Rural Districts

Typhoid fever is almost twice as prevalent in the rural districts of this country as in the cities. This has been definitely shown by the figures gathered in the registration district of the United States, where the death rate in the rural localities was 9.6 per 100,000 persons, while in the cities it was 5.5. There are states, however, which show that an excess of rural population need not carry with it a high typhoid fever death rate. Wisconsin is a conspicuous example. This state, with more than half its population rural, had a typhoid fever rate of 2.5 per 100,000, which is identical to that of Massachusetts, which is almost entirely urban.

Fixing Radio Aerials

The radio aerial repairman is not to be outdone by those who repair the shekels in this golden age of radio. The itinerant has merged a new job with his former remote occupation of repairing clotheslines in backyards. For a small sum he repairs your radio aerial, which may have caused a storm. "In some blocks I make more money fixing aerials than repairing radio lines," he said. "The work is much safer. And you don't have to know a lot about science to do it."—New York Sun.

WORLD'S BIGGEST BRIDGE PLANNED

Will Span the Hudson River, New York to New Jersey.

EXCEED PANAMA CANAL COST

Most Stupendous Engineering Work Yet Undertaken—Will Contain Twice as Much Steel as All Five East River Bridges Combined—To Be 685 Feet High and Will Take at Least 15 Years to Build—Congress Asked for Authority.

The proposed North river bridge, spanning the Hudson from the center of New York city to Weehawken, N. J., will be, with its connections and terminals, "the most stupendous engineering work yet undertaken, surpassing in that respect and also in final cost the Panama canal," according to Representative Ernest Ackerman of New Jersey.

The plans call for a single span of 5,000 feet, without a single pier in the river, hung on four immense cables suspended from terminal towers 685 feet high.

The bridge will contain 450,000 tons of steel, which is twice as much as in all the five well-known East river bridges combined, and which far exceeds the tonnage of steel in all the existing bridges spanning the Ohio, Missouri and Mississippi rivers combined.

Would Beat Them All:

The Hudson river bridge would contain more than ten times the tonnage of the stupendous Quebec bridge in Canada, which is the longest span in North America, and which took 17 years to build.

It would contain thirty times as much steel as there is in the great Brooklyn bridge, hailed for many years as the greatest work of man, and would require ten times the tonnage of steel in the Scotch bridge over the Firth of Forth, the largest steel bridge in the world.

These and other breath-taking facts concerning the proposed construction, the authority for which is included in a bill now pending before congress, are contained in Mr. Ackerman's remarks printed in the Congressional Record as a part of the record of debate on the bill in the house of representatives.

In return for the immense cost, the great amount of labor and engineering involved, and the 15 years estimated as the minimum time required to build the gigantic bridge, Congressman Ackerman presented many advantages to be derived.

Automobiles and motortrucks would be able to cross from New York to New Jersey in a few minutes instead of being held up for hours as is now the case.

A saving in the cost of delivery and a certainty of supplies, fuel, food and other necessities to the metropolis would result.

Reduction in shipping costs to and from the port of New York, and consequent benefit to the nation's commerce, would follow.

Through rail connections from the north and south, east and west would be possible, as railroad tracks would occupy one level of the structure, thus giving greater speed and convenience of travel with elimination of some unnecessary costs.

Important in War Time.

Besides allowing for greater business expansion and home building in New Jersey and along the Hudson, the bridge would offer in time of war an important element of safety and efficiency.

The history of the efforts to construct the bridge goes as far back as 1890, when an act incorporating a company to build the bridge was approved.

The bridge is not to cost the federal government a cent. It is to be erected by the same engineers who built the Hell Gate Arch bridge, with finances raised by the states of New York and New Jersey. The only federal participation is in authorizing its erection over tide water, which is under government control.

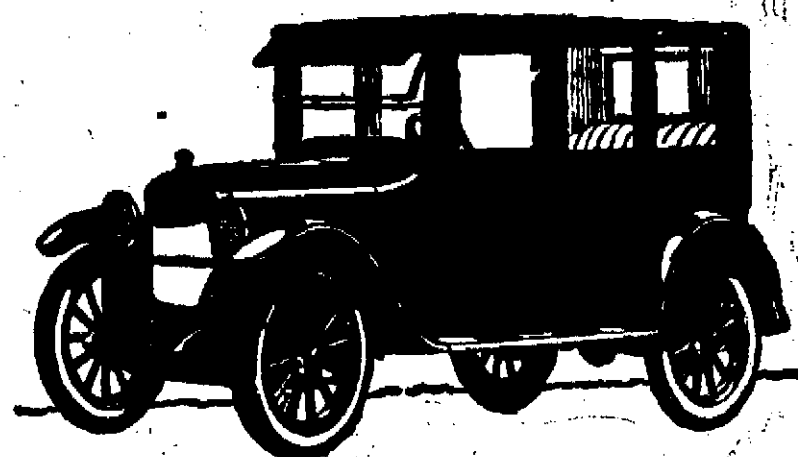

Litigation, injunction and other factors have prevented actual construction since 1890. Work was started on the New Jersey foundations in 1893, but persons living in the vicinity stopped work with an injunction, claiming of the noises of drills and blasting. The money panic of that year also had a hand in stopping the work, and before railroad finances had settled down ten years had elapsed. Later the World war caused another delay, but now, it was said, everything is ready to go ahead.

In the meantime, the plans for the bridge have been greatly changed. Traffic has increased by leaps and bounds. The present plans call for a bridge four times greater than the original. A new location also had to be found because the center of the city had moved farther north and instead of being located at Twenty-third street, as first planned, the New York terminal will be at about Fifty-seventh street.

RESTORE OLD ART

Workmen Bring to Light Glories of Westminster Abbey.

Removal of Varnish From Ancient Shields Reveals Beauty of Work Done Seven Centuries Ago.

After having been hidden for generations a new wealth of beauty has been brought to light during the restoration work in Westminster abbey, says a London correspondent in the New York World. The stone shields that decorate the walls on the north and south choir aisles are now shining in all their medieval splendor, after having been smothered for 200 years in varnish.

These shields, which are believed to be the oldest specimens of architectural heraldry in the world, were placed there by Henry III, when the building was new. They include the coats-of-arms of Simon d. Montfort, Louis IX of France and King Henry himself. The device of Eleanor of Provence now hangs from a colored festoon, in reality of stone, that disappears behind two tiny heads. Another festoon is decorated with a bobbed hair young woman that might quite well have stepped out of a canvas by Augustus John.

The biggest "find" has been the gorgeous decoration on the tomb of Edmund Crouchback and two others on the north side of the high altar. Here it was that the first experiments were made on the dimming varnish that had been used so lavishly, perhaps under the direction of Sir Christopher Wren, with the mistaken idea of preserving the color. Instead of the almost black surface that they bore only a year ago, these tombs now appear a mass of brilliant coloring that pays a high tribute to the craftsmanship of the men who decorated them seven centuries ago.

One of the renovators was found busy at work on the back of the sedilia. Here the other day a magnificent painting was exhumed from the grime of centuries. It represents Edward the Confessor holding out his finger for the ring to be slipped on by St. John. "This is the finest piece of green I have discovered in the abbey," exclaimed the craftsman as he pointed to the sister panel on which he was busy. All that can be seen at present is a hand of lily white against an emerald background. The work of renovation is being carried on under the direction of Mrs. Tristram of the Royal Society of Arts.

It is less than a year since the work began, and there are more artistic and quaint treasures waiting to be brought to light. "There is absolutely no fear of damage being done," remarked the surveyor to the chapter. "The process is the same as when old masters are cleaned. The mural decorations in the abbey are undoubtedly fine, but the best specimens are in the chapter house. Unfortunately, these do not come under the scheme of restoration, as the chapter house is under a different jurisdiction. Some of the panels contain remarkable coloring, and even in their present state the eye can discern a wealth of detail under the deposits of grime and dust."

$9,000,000 IN BOOTLEGGER BAIL

By Telegram to The Freeman.

San Francisco, Nov. 24.—Nine million dollars in bail bond money has been deposited in the federal court in the past eleven months to secure the release of some 4,000 alleged bootleggers, Federal Prohibition Agent Samuel F. Rutter estimates that to permit this enormous amount of bail capital the bootlegging "profession" must have a capital of $35,000,000 or more. Bail in each case amounts from $1,000 to $5,000.

TRUST COMPANIES CONTINUE GROWTH

Report of Kingston Trust Company Reflects Prosperity Here—Hundredth Year of Trust Company Service.

The report of the Kingston Trust Company, published elsewhere in The Freeman, is an interesting indication of the general business and banking condition of Kingston.

Substantial increases in Trust Company resources both for the state and the country are shown by "Trust Companies of the United States," the annual publication of the United States Mortgage & Trust Company of New York, just issued for 1922. The figures are of exceptional interest in that 1922 marks the 100th year of trust company service in the United States.

The total resources for the year ending June 30th were $12,733,620.73, against $12,323,430.51, last year, and aggregate deposits for the first time exceeded $10,000,000.00. New York state reported a total of $3,556,356.51, for a gain of over $27,000,000.

The states showing the largest gains for the year are, in order, New York, $227,757,000; Illinois, $109,000,000; California, $77,292,000; New Jersey, $53,331,000; Maryland, $42,000,000; Massachusetts, $33,214,000; Rhode Island, $15,257,000; Virginia, $10,000,000. The North Atlantic and North Central states showed the largest sectional gains.

President John W. Platten of the United States Mortgage & Trust Company, in commenting on the year's progress, says:

"This, the twentieth annual edition of 'Trust Companies of the United States,' is published during the centennial year of trust company activities in this country, the first grant of fiduciary power to a corporation having been made in 1822.

"The position of the trust companies considered in the light of their development since that time gives every promise that their influence will continue in increasing degree during the new century.

"Trust Company resources in the United States for the year ending June 30, 1922 were $12,733,620.73, thus establishing a new high record, and effectually offsetting the loss shown in 1921 compared with 1920. The total exceeds that of last year by over $416,000,000 and is greater by $287,742,000 than the previous high mark of 1920."
